Market Context: Gas & LNG in the Americas

Gas and LNG are playing an increasingly strategic role across the Americas, underpinning power systems, enabling industrial growth, strengthening regional trade, and supporting pragmatic energy transition pathways.

Across the region, key structural forces are shaping decisions: security of supply, infrastructure development, disciplined capital investment, and credible emissions performance. These dynamics are redefining how projects are developed, financed, and operated.

The summit provides a senior-level platform to engage on these priorities — focusing on strategic opportunities, meaningful partnerships, and long-term positioning in a rapidly evolving energy landscape.

Connecting Markets, Infrastructure & Policy Across the Americas

The Americas Gas & LNG Summit is a senior-level, discussion-driven forum that mobilises decision-makers from across North America, Central America, the Caribbean, and South America to actively shape the future of the gas and LNG value chain.

Designed to prioritise impact, discretion, and actionable engagement, the Summit provides a trusted environment for participants to drive strategic dialogue, forge partnerships, identify investment opportunities, and make decisions that advance the region's gas and LNG sector.

Peer-to-Peer Exchange at the Core

Interactive formats are designed to encourage candid peer-to-peer discussions, allowing participants to challenge assumptions, share experience and explore regional perspectives — from supply and infrastructure development to market access, contracting and investment risk.

Curated Content & High-Value Networking

High-level keynotes, strategic plenaries and closed-door roundtables are complemented by curated networking and dedicated speaker engagement opportunities. The format maximises the value of time on site, ensuring every interaction is purposeful.

A Decision-Maker-Only Environment

The Americas Gas & LNG Summit 2026 offers a confidential, senior-only setting for commercial insight and long-term strategic thinking, positioning gas and LNG within a rapidly evolving global energy landscape.

Designed for Impact

The agenda prioritises premium access and senior-level interaction. Delegates leave with clearer strategic insight, practical perspectives and meaningful connections across the Americas. Closed-door round tables represent the Summit's most exclusive format, enabling off-the-record dialogue on strategy, capital allocation and risk.

Strategic Themes & Agenda Focus

The Summit agenda is structured around four intersecting priorities: Strategy, Markets, Infrastructure, and Energy Transition — reflecting the key drivers shaping gas and LNG decision-making across North America, Central America, the Caribbean, and South America.

Discussions highlight the opportunities emerging from the Americas' growing role in global LNG flows, evolving supply-demand dynamics, infrastructure and logistics development, and the commercial frameworks needed to optimise investment and manage risk. Energy transition sessions focus on practical, credible pathways — including emissions management, methane measurement, and the role of gas in enabling resilient energy systems — unlocking new avenues for sustainable growth

Together, these themes provide a senior-level platform for strategic dialogue, connecting markets, infrastructure, and policy to identify partnerships, investment prospects, and projects that will define the future of gas and LNG in the region. Closed-door roundtables offer the summit's most exclusive format, enabling confidential discussion on strategy, capital allocation, and high-value opportunities.
