THE SELF
BY TWO POINT TWO

TWO POINT TWO is a genderless, all-inclusive, non-demographic and anti-conformist fashion label from India. We celebrate individuality, confidence and diversity. It aims to create an "agender" identity, which has characters from maybe either both the binaries or maybe neither. Two Point Two believes that beauty exists in every soul and it's all about accepting and endorsing. We focus on the individual and not their gender, culture, race or size and support them to express their individuality through clothing even if it's something unusual. Being "Typically Atypical" is our motto.

THE SELF

'The Self' embodies a reconceptualization of genderless clothing, aspiring to refashion a world that breaks down the boundaries of gender and illuminating the very fluidity of it. It speaks about self-confidence inspite of all flaws and quirks. It is about finding perfection in the imperfections; about embracing one's uniqueness and weirdness because that is what sets you apart from the rest. The collection also finds inspiration in the representation of the Hindu deity Lord Shiva's form of 'Ardhanarishvara', which is a depiction of androgynous form of Hindu deities Shiva and Parvati. It is a synthesis of the masculine and feminine energies of the universe in one body. The embroideries portray the tantric symbolic representation of Lord Shiva amalgamated with the Japanese symbol Enzo that depicts the circle of life and all the empty, blank and hollow memories of the past that are inevitably part of it. It tries to portray those aspects of life that feel imperfect, vulnerable, unfitted and yet are what makes each individual's life 'their own'. There is no start or end to this circle translating to the endless possibilities in life which can only be realized when we accept ourselves wholly and truly. The symbol suggests to embrace the natural state of every being on earth and in this way embrace the universe and its peculiarities as well the one's within our own self.
