

Matthew O'Brien
One sheet: Haus of MOB

Leisure wear is Matthew O'Brien's heartland as designing, making and selling street style clothing was his first foray into fashion as a young entrepreneur. He continues this line today for when his ready to wear and couture clients are enjoying some down time, and for anyone who likes to feel relaxed whilst wearing a designer brand at an accessible price point.

I love this line because it's part of the story of how I became the designer that I am today. Leisure wear is where it all started for me, making and selling from my bedroom as a teenager. Today, everything is designed, made and printed by hand, in-house, like my ready to wear, tailored and couture collections. It's still being embraced just as enthusiastically as it always has been.
