Currently she is putting most of her creativity into tattooing, but she would also love to expand to other fields: graphics, illustrations, canvas or oil painting. DOBRA

Economist by education. After years spent in accounting, in 2013 she decided to turn her life in a different direction. Raised on Grimms' and Andersen's fairy tales, she is drawn to all that's fantastic, bizarre and grotesque. She likes to play with lines and introduce a lot of details. She really enjoys bigger, very colourful projects – the more details and shades, the better. Despite this, she also tattoos in black, because – as she says – she is more interested in the theme than the way it's done.

JALOSIŃSKA

Graphic designer by profession – graduated from the Academy of Fine Arts in Wrocław. Her Master's thesis was about fashion and this is the field in which she was active in the following years. Designing prints for clothes using tattoo design sketches turned out to be her way, and is currently the only method to integrate both her passions – fashion and tattoos.

KAMYK

He wanted to be a hacker, but fortunately he became a tattooist! He had been creating "paper slips" since forever, but started calling it collage only recently. KOT

The only thing she knows about herself is that she emerged from the sea (near Gdańsk). Then she went full steam to school to make use of her brand-new fins-turned-hands. At school, she revelled in the expressive possibilities of creativity – and as she was drawn to paints, she turned to tattooing. The woods – moss, ferns, brambles, blueberries, and wild strawberries (ahhh, wild strawberries...) – are the resources she's constantly drawing from. There's still much left, so straw after straw, she moves these goods onto the human skin, bringing the forest closer to people.

NAT & PIOTREK

Nat. Esthete and hedonist. She looks all around the world with attention, draws energy from the universe and from nature. She loves being in nature (above all and with her whole being!) and great, open spaces. She does mountain running to see more and go further. Freelancer and free spirit. In everyday life she works with people as a personal trainer, group activities instructor, dietician and... food photographer. She handles the 'social media' for Rebel Skin, sometimes switching to the other side of the lens and posing for pics.

Piotrek. Constantly searching for adventures and experiences, with an above-average tolerance for risk. He loves coffee in the morning, the purring of his cat, new challenges and growth – the kind that defines, enriches and carries important meaning. He practises boxing and climbing, choosing beautiful, exposed rock faces. Esthete... Professionally – a programmer (frontend & backend) coding in the quiet of his home with a tomcat on his lap. He created the Rebel Skin shop and runs it on an ongoing basis, solving seemingly unsolvable problems.
