THE BRAND

At Mercredy we have been researching on ways to reduce the problem of plastic bottle pollution.

Through various processes we turn the bottles collected from the Ocean into fabric from which we make our slippers.

The Materials are of exceptional quality and gives shape to the ecological shoe range.

In addition we use local Spanish factories, all highly committed to reduce the environmental impact of shoe production, by using traditional techniques and handcrafted processes.

By using these initiatives we not only clean our Oceans but help preserve the planet too!

THE PRODUCT

All materials used in Mercredy shoes are ecological. Mercredy works with an innovative production process in which recovered plastic bottles are ground and turned into fibres, cleaned and then spun into yarn and woven into fabric with which the brand creates its shoe range.

A heavy duty felt is used for the upper and lining in a fabric that is certified as 100% recycled by the Global Recycling Standard office.

Each shoe is made from at least 2 recovered bottles. Outsoles are made from 100% natural rubber, from sustainable sources.

Then the product is Vulcanised without the use of glues or solvents, this reducing pollution and harmful waste.

No components of animal origin have been used in these shoes.
