OUR HISTORY

In 1992, a small service-oriented industry was born in a small garage at home, collaborating with other textile industries in the northern region.

In the early years, our company was named Dielora, which, after many cycles of life, positioned itself as a textile company that produces and develops clothing items for brands in various segments.

HOW DOES THE STORY OF CARMAFIL BEGIN?

In Portugal, in the 1990s, the Portuguese industry mainly worked with domestic brands, manufacturing and producing clothing for the fairs that existed throughout the country. Globalization triggered the growth and exploration of other markets, manufacturing and developing for major international brands.

Thirty years later, the company CARDOSO MACIEL & FILHOS transformed into CARMAFIL. It is a company with a family DNA, like other Portuguese textile industries. Today, the company focuses on the medium-high and luxury niche market segment. The art of doing things well and adding value to its entire production chain.

The founders

When we founded CARMAFIL, our mission began by providing services to other companies and brands. We grew, evolved, and now our mission is focused on helping brands create their identity through clothing and collections.

Currently, our mission is clear: we cannot change consumption habits, but we can assist our clients in developing their collections with maximum quality, responsible and conscious production, and the highest possible durability.

THE FUTURE

"FINDING INSPIRATION IN THE PRESENT TO REDISCOVER THE PAST AND CREATE A BETTER FUTURE."

What makes a brand stand out? In addition to its visual identity, purpose, and marketing, the product is one of the pillars of a brand. In the world of fashion brands, we know that trends transform according to the inspiration cycle of designers and creators. But it is in production that we bring designers' and creators' dreams to life. It is their dreams that we materialize through our perfectionism. From the details of each sewn line to each step in the creation of a garment at CARMAFIL. Our technical expertise allows us to revisit the past in the wonderful world of garment making and haberdashery. Our textile archive holds marvelous ancestral materials that combine our knowledge with present and future technology. After all, fashion reinvents itself, but the essence lies in the past, combined with the technology of the present, in-house. Our mission is to combine the technical expertise that is the symbiosis between the time and know-how of the past. Over time, we have honed our sensitivity for producing each piece within the conceptual and sociological framework that our clients' brands occupy in the market.

More than just sewing lines, joining fabrics, and packaging your orders, we have the mission and purpose of creating and developing clothing with responsible production, consciousness, and perfectionism.
