Louise Nisbet

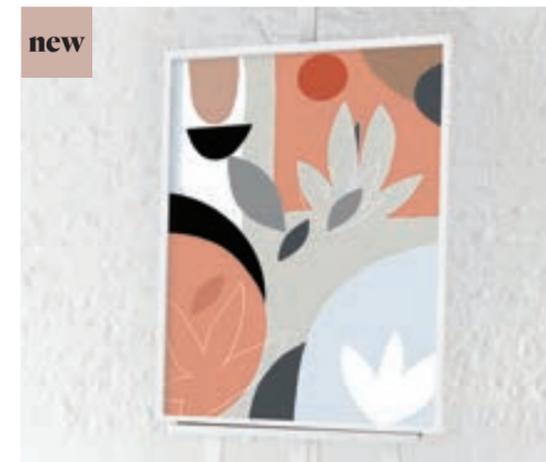

Louise Nisbet works from her studio at home in the north west of England where she lives with her husband and two children. She loves to walk in the countryside, especially in the nearby Lake District which is a constant source of inspiration in both her life and work. Having completed a BA (Hons) degree in Fine Art, Louise started working in the greetings card business as an in-house designer. She loved the fast-paced environment and ever-changing trends, and after some years of working in-house, she decided to take the exciting step of setting up her own business. Louise now works for both the UK high street and the international market. The combination of her design knowledge and fine art background has resulted in beautifully accomplished wall art pieces. Through sophisticated poses, her fashion prints have an air of elegance in keeping with the traditional, while her skilful brushwork pushes her illustrations into the contemporary sphere.

Summer Thornton

Summer Thornton grew up in Norfolk and studied at the Norwich School of Art & Design. After moving to London in 2000, she set up her studio in South London where she began to create her contemporary watercolours. Summer uses watercolour as she likes its unpredictable nature and the element of freedom and richness that it adds to her work, especially when the colours flow into one another. Summer has a keen eye for design and also likes collecting antiques and vintage clothing.

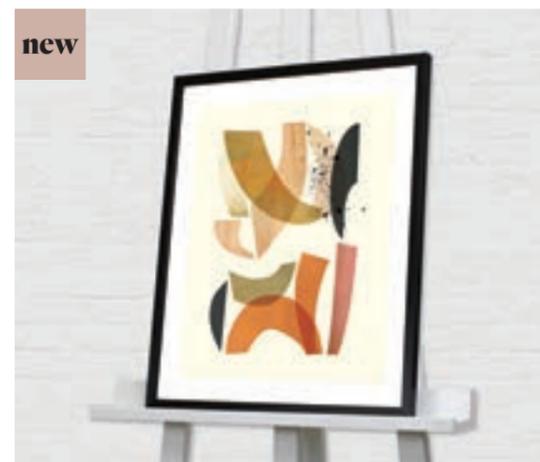

Nicola Evans

Nicola Evans was born in a small seaside town on the south coast of England in 1976 and grew up with a keen interest in Art and Design. Her passion for illustration developed while gaining a University degree in Graphic Design and Advertising. Now many years later, she has returned to the coast, working from the home she shares with her husband and daughter. Nicola creates fine art and illustrations for greeting cards, books and framed prints, taking inspiration for her artwork from everyday objects around her home and the coastal surroundings where she spends most of her time.

Hope Bainbridge

Hope Bainbridge is an artist and textile designer based in northern California. She received her degree in textile design from the Fashion Institute of Design & Merchandising in Los Angeles, California. She began work as an in-house artist for one of the top companies in the commercial art world in Southern California. Missing the foothills of the Sierra Nevada mountains where she grew up, she and her husband moved back to their small hometown on the outskirts of Yosemite National Forest. She then began freelancing for companies and licensing her artwork. Her work ranges from designing bedroom line collections for kids, removable wallpaper, and specific types of artwork requested by clients. She has since then become a mother who loves being able to work from home and do what she loves. Hope is continually inspired by the natural beauty around her. She works with a variety of mediums including oils, acrylics, water colours and digital design. Enamoured by the whimsical and lovely, Hope loves to experiment with new artistic styles and aspires to elevate whatever she creates.

Sam Toft

Living by the sea in Brighton with her two delightful dogs, Sam Toft enjoys making her living from drawing her world of imaginary friends. She never intended to be an artist. She had dreams of becoming a Gymnast, but after spending time in countless jobs and completing a Degree in Business Studies, Sam moved to Liverpool with her sister to attend a BTEC in General Art and Design. She had finally found her vocation! Today in her seaside studio with only her dogs and BBC's Radio 4 for company, Sam's imagination runs free, and her dear Mr Mustard and friends come to life. Sam also likes to write and sculpt, recently creating a whole cast of puppets from her popular characters.

Jo Grundy

Brought up on a farm in Berkshire, Jo Grundy fell in love with nature and the English landscape from a young age, and it is easy to see where she finds her inspiration as an artist. She has always loved art and so trained as a graphic designer, working in this career for 14 years. She later took time out to have her two children, and this is when she was able to develop her painting style. Now Jo works with a specific brand of paint called Jo Sonja by Chroma that comes in a beautiful range of colours that helps to give her artwork its distinctive colour palette. Jo also loves to add texture to her paintings, letting her paintings evolve organically. She uses a combination of mark making and mixed media such as stitching, paper and beads which breathe an element of fun into her paintings.

Louise O'Hara

Louise O'Hara works out of her little studio in the heart of Cheshire, surrounded by the sewing machines, boxes of vintage fabrics, typewriters and thread that she incorporates into her richly layered seascapes and landscapes. While gaining her Masters Degree in Fashion and Textiles, she discovered the Japanese aesthetic concept of Wabi-Sabi and aims to capture 'beauty in imperfection' in her designs. Louise is influenced by aged textures and surfaces and loves to play around with threadbare, hand-dyed fabrics and hand-painted papers. Substituting the pencil for her needle and thread, Louise stitches stories into her paper and uses layers and discarded items to create a sense of nostalgia and narrative in her work.

Chris Forsey

Beginning his career as an illustrator in a publisher's studio after studying art and graphics in Bristol, Chris Forsey has been an artist for most of his working life. With his studio in Dorking, Surrey, and the North Downs on his doorstep, Chris finds constant inspiration from the landscape around him. He embraces a mixed-media approach to his work, fusing watercolour, pastel and gouache to create his coastal and countryside scenes. Using a combination of colour, expressive mark-making and powerful compositions, he aims to capture precise moments in time: sudden changes in light, a time of day or season. Widely exhibited in galleries across the UK, Chris has won The Matt Bruce Award and The Donald Blake Award for contemporary watercolour. In 2010 he became part of The Royal Institute of Painters in Watercolours.

Jay Nottingham

Jay was born in Bedfordshire in 1972. From an early age, Jay's artistic family surrounded him with colour and design. Both his grandfather and great grandfather were artists and, unsurprisingly, greatly influenced his growth as an artist. It was only a matter of time before Jay followed in their footsteps and became a professional artist. Despite his obvious talent, Jay has had no formal training. His self-disciplined commitment to his work has enabled him to master a number of mediums including oils, acrylics and watercolours. His development as an artist continues to flourish as he further cultivates his technique and evolves his style. Jay is renowned for his versatility as an artist. From bright woodland scenes full of texture and colour to hauntingly subtle moonlit beaches, Jay's work demonstrates his ability to master a wide range of styles while maintaining his artistic identity. He continues to expand the variety of subjects he paints, consistently pushing himself to new levels. He now lives in South Wales with his family, where he paints as a full-time artist.

Lars van de Goor

Dutch landscape photographer Lars van de Goor was born in 1964 on a houseboat in the middle of verdant farmland. Here, he grew up practically part of the nature that surrounded him. Lars started his career as a musician but later found a passion for photography, both linked by composition. While influenced by the Dutch Masters, Lars' main source of inspiration is the trees of his beloved Gelderland. Lars depicts the trees' ancient power and timeless energy, and their interaction with the famous Dutch light to yield remarkable landscapes, often eerie in their otherworldliness. In September 2017 Lars and his wife exchanged their home in Lochem, the Netherlands, for a mobile one in which they travel through Europe to explore new and inspiring places.

Jane Bannon

Norfolk-born Jane Bannon is a self-taught artist, specialising in stunning watercolours of farmyard and domestic animals. Art has always played an important part in Jane's life, and after a career in insurance, she finally decided to devote herself full time to painting. She has found this to be an incredible journey and each of her days is different. She is the happiest when painting an animal, capturing and conveying its innermost thoughts to the viewer. Jane now calls the beautiful market town of Bungay, Suffolk, home. She lives in a listed cottage in the conservation area and can be found most days on Outney Common, walking her dogs Bella & Bertie. The cows who live in the fields opposite her home provide an excellent source of inspiration, along with all of the local dogs she sees on her daily walks!

Louise Brown

Louise Brown's irresistible animal paintings appeal to a broad audience, and their cutesy charm is enough to make anyone smile. Based in rural Lincolnshire, Louise is surrounded by ducks, chickens and other animals that she loves and that inspire her as an artist. Her other subjects include cows, hares and woodland animals. Entirely self-taught, Louise works predominantly in acrylics and oils. Every one of her animals adopts their own quirky expression to add an element of humour into her paintings.

Jennifer Rose

Living in the charming village of Storrington, West Sussex, Jennifer Rose enjoys the beautiful South Downs on her doorstep and glorious sea views just the other side. Jennifer also loves to walk through nearby Parham Park, which is full of wildlife, especially stags. She is never short of inspiration from the beautiful scenery, flora and fauna surrounding her. With a naturally loose watercolour style, Jennifer finds the medium simply magical to work with, never failing to find excitement when creating unexpected, beautiful effects. She uses a lot of water when she paints to create layered effects, watermarks and pockets of detail. While she takes a 'less is more' approach by leaving sections out to add a sense of curiosity for the viewer, Jennifer likes to add in additional unexpected colour to bring her atmospheric paintings to life.

Aimee Del Valle

British watercolour artist Aimee Del Valle now lives and works in a rural village in France, near Paris. Her early life was spent heavily immersed in the world of theatre and dance, and this provided plenty of inspiration for her other passion: drawing and painting. When Aimee wasn't dancing, she was sketching people, especially dancers, an interest encouraged by her two naturally artistic parents. Dance and the human form remain a strong influence in Aimee's work, and her exquisite ballerinas, portraits and nudes express raw human emotion and feelings using brisk, expressive brushwork. Aimee paints in a comparatively loose and liberal technique whereby she allows the paint to create unique rhythms and imperfections in a reflection of real life. "I am inspired by people, their psychology and their cultures as well as animals and all things living and beautiful."

Helen Ahpornsiri

Helen Ahpornsiri (pronounced Ahh-pon-si-ree) is an Illustrator based in East Sussex, UK. All of Helen's uniquely beautiful images are made using only real flowers, petals, leaves and stems. These are all grown or foraged responsibly before being placed in a flower press. After 1-6 weeks, the flora and foliage are flat and ready to use – their natural colours preserved, with no dyes or paints. Each piece is then cut and delicately positioned to form detailed designs, brimming with the intricate twists and tangles of plant life.

Ailsa Black

Scottish artist Ailsa Black works from a seaside studio in the tiny village of Carsethorn in Dumfries and Galloway. From the modest studio at the top of her house, she observes and depicts village life, drawing inspiration from the birds, animals and countryside surrounding her. Ailsa's partner Alan and their failed sheepdog, Jack, also make regular appearances in her charming paintings. Ailsa's art celebrates the purest and deepest joys in life, those cherished moments of quiet companionship when the world seems at peace. In her free time, you will find Ailsa riding her bicycle around the quiet, local roads or rambling with Jack for miles up in the hills or along the shore to discover peaceful, quiet places. Here she watches the passing birds and animals, imagining conversations between them. It is this enjoyment of the happiness and simplicity of the good things in life which she then shares with you through her colourful and uplifting art.

Rajan Dey

Rajan Dey, known as RAJ among his friend circle, was born in Kolkata, also known as "City of Joy". With over 18 years of experience in the Software Industry, he has travelled and worked in many countries and is currently living in the UK with his wife and 8-year-old daughter who is also keen on art. By qualification Rajan is an electrical and electronics engineer, by profession he is a software consultant but by passion he is an artist. Rajan has been painting in various mediums like watercolour, acrylic, oil and pastel for many years now. His early interest in art was cultivated during his school days where he had won several accolades and scholarships. After school, he had to suspend painting for several years due to higher studies and work-related pressure. Painting had resumed after decades when his daughter started showing interest in art. Since then it has been a never-ending journey and will hopefully continue for many more years.

Joanne Last

Born in Surrey in 1962, Joanne Last originally trained at the Royal College of Music as a classical pianist and worked for many years as an accompanist and teacher. However, painting had always been an integral part of her life, and in 1990 she undertook a two-year course at The Putney School of Art and Design. Joanne has painted many different subject matters - landscape, abstract, and cityscape - but always finds herself drawn back to the sea. A keen traveller, she particularly loves the rugged coast of North and West Cornwall and the barren beauty of the Scottish island of Islay. Her aim is not to simply record the view, but the experience of being in that place - the time of day, light, weight and surge of water, the feel of sun, rain or relentless wind.

Denise Di Battista

Self-taught landscape artist Denise Di Battista works from her coastline studio in South Wales. Denise and her husband are keen walkers who can frequently be found exploring the Gower Peninsula, which provides plenty of inspiration for her rich, vibrant paintings. "Searching for a subject is easy; I simply need to look around me! There is surely nothing quite as inspiring as the natural world both in sight or sound, beautiful colours, textures and shapes are everywhere. Add to that some birdsong or the sound of the sea and the call to paint is irresistible, what more could an artist ask for!"

Joe Ramm

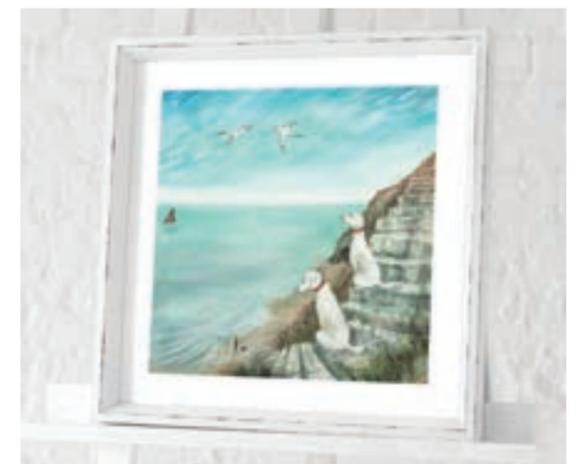

Joe Ramm lives with her husband, daughter and dog "Tinker" by the sea in Brighton. Friends with Sam Toft, Joe shares Sam's love for walks by the sea where she plans what she'll be painting next and she works in a studio at the end of her garden. She also has an attachment to the West Country where the wild landscapes provide a vast source of inspiration. Joe studied Illustration at the Harrow School of Art before working in London as a freelance editorial Illustrator for ten years. Following a move to Brighton, she began to paint on wood and exhibited in numerous shows including, The Battersea Contemporary Art Fair and Brighton Art Fair. She also takes part in the Brighton Open House Festival and sells through various galleries on the South Coast.

Jennifer Rose

Living in the charming village of Storrington, West Sussex, Jennifer Rose enjoys the beautiful South Downs on her doorstep and glorious sea views just the other side. Jennifer also loves to walk through nearby Parham Park, which is full of wildlife, especially stags. She is never short of inspiration from the beautiful scenery, flora and fauna surrounding her. With a naturally loose watercolour style, Jennifer finds the medium simply magical to work with, never failing to find excitement when creating unexpected, beautiful effects. She uses a lot of water when she paints to create layered effects, watermarks and pockets of detail. While she takes a 'less is more' approach by leaving sections out to add a sense of curiosity for the viewer, Jennifer likes to add in additional unexpected colour to bring her atmospheric paintings to life.

Anne-Marie Butlin

Anne-Marie Butlin lives in Crouch End, North London, and paints full time from her garden studio where she creates beautiful, uplifting images of gardens and still lifes. Her paintings convey the character of different flowers and the unique feeling they can create in a space; the strong structures and often the sheer joyfulness of their appearance. Anne-Marie is inspired by the sense of calm that flowers can give us; her paintings provide a chance to contemplate and meditate, to remember our connection with the natural world. Anne-Marie combines strong traditional technical skill with a modern sensibility, her paintings working just as well in a simple modern interior as in a period home.

Paul Donaghy

Paul Donaghy was born in Northern Ireland in 1964. A successful career in Graphic Design followed his studies at the University of Ulster, Belfast, but in 2004 he left this behind to dedicate his time to painting. The work of The Scottish Colourists, Matisse, Cézanne, Nicolas de Staël, and Yeats all influence Paul's work. Paul works mostly with a palette knife and characterises his paintings with highlights of heavy impasto and vigorous slashes of colour. Paul's origins as a designer are still very visible in the strong shapes, lines and bold colour that embody his floral still lifes. He hopes to provide moments that are necessary to everyone to reflect, to meditate and to think intensely.

Hazel Bowman

Hazel Bowman is a self-taught artist from Scotland and specialises in charcoal, pastels and mixed media. During her time as a nurse, she carefully studied the human form and could always be found sketching whilst learning. It was soon clear that her passion was for art and drawing figures and her portfolio of dancers began to take form. Hazel's images beautifully capture the energy and movement of the ballerinas with a sense of magic that sees her drawings almost dance off the page. Hazel loves to draw the Scottish Ballet as well as Latvian burlesque, Russian and Argentinian dancers and she always manages to catch that one special moment of the routine on paper.

Aimee Del Valle

British watercolour artist Aimee del Valle now lives and works in a rural village in France, near Paris. Her early life was spent heavily immersed in the world of theatre and dance, and this provided plenty of inspiration for her other passion: drawing and painting. When Aimee wasn't dancing, she was sketching people, especially dancers, an interest encouraged by her two naturally artistic parents. Dance and the human form remain a strong influence in Aimee's work, and her exquisite ballerinas, portraits and nudes express raw human emotion and feelings using brisk, expressive brushwork. Aimee paints in a comparatively loose and liberal technique whereby she allows the paint to create unique rhythms and imperfections in a reflection of real life. "I am inspired by people, their psychology and their cultures as well as animals and all things living and beautiful."

Jon Barker

Born in Yorkshire in 1950, Jon Barker enjoys a growing reputation and demand for his work. Jon's painting priorities are to express movement, power, sensitivity and tonal balance through his fluid and expressive style. His 'City Life' series captures the movement and colour of people on busy streets and pavement cafés. The intention is to portray the mood and atmosphere of the moment, providing a glimpse into the lives of strangers who allow us to reflect on our own lives and reminisce about the places we have visited. Deliberately anonymous, his characters allow our imaginations free rein. These are well-known places, but Jon's intention is to transport us from the realities of the real world to a more idealised one in which romance and a sense of protection prevail.

Rajan Dey

Rajan Dey, known as RAJ among his friend circle, was born in Kolkata, also known as "City of Joy". With over 18 years of experience in the Software Industry, he has travelled and worked in many countries and is currently living in the UK with his wife and 8-year-old daughter who is also keen on art. By qualification Rajan is an electrical and electronics engineer, by profession he is a software consultant but by passion he is an artist. Rajan has been painting in various mediums like watercolour, acrylic, oil and pastel for many years now. His early interest in art was cultivated during his school days where he had won several accolades and scholarships. After school, he had to suspend painting for several years due to higher studies and work-related pressure. Painting had resumed after decades when his daughter started showing interest in art. Since then it has been a never-ending journey and will hopefully continue for many more years.

Richard Macneil

Self-taught artist Richard Macneil has always worked in the creative industries in a wide range of disciplines including sculpture, ceramics, and graphics. He spent a long time working in the USA, and one of his greatest achievements was to see his artwork displayed in The White House. Born and bred in Worcestershire, England, Richard returned there and worked on developing the unique style that he paints in today. He strives to create "art that appeals to and is accessible to all". Richard now works together with his family as 'The Macneil Studio', and his designs can be found in retail outlets across the world on a broad range of products including gifts, greeting cards, home decor, stationery, and fine art prints.

Over several decades that span the heart of the 20th century, the magazine — calling itself LIFE — published many of the World's most memorable photographs ever taken, documenting political and cultural events, as well as famous celebrities who helped shape our modern world. Our TIME LIFE collection brings together some of the most iconic of these images, including Alfred Eisenstaedt's famous photo of a nurse in her sailor's arms, snapped on August 14th, 1945, as they celebrated Victory over Japan Day in Times Square, New York City.

Ian Winstanley

Ian Winstanley was part of a family of engineers and musicians but eventually found his home in the field of photography. Starting out in Birmingham working for one of the top photographic studios, Ian became exclusively involved in the advertising and design fields, later working on fine art projects for the London artist agency, Private View. Since setting up his studio fifteen years ago, Ian has built up an exciting portfolio of cars to reportage, gorgeous classic florals and still life to tranquil landscapes. Whether shooting on location or in his studio, there isn't much that he can't turn his hand to. His intention is to produce photos that preserve a delicate balance between the natural and the refined. Ian has his own studio space and is now one of England's leading fine art photographers.

Marina Cano

Based in Cantabria, Northern Spain, Marina Cano is an international award-winning wildlife photographer. Marina's interest in photography started as a little girl when she would accompany her father to photograph the winter storms. She would watch him breathe life into his photographs in the darkroom and was fascinated with the process. She started taking pictures as a teenager with her father's camera. Amazed by the beauty of wild animals, Marina has travelled around the world to capture their elegance. Her work has taken her overseas to Africa and other countries, and she also loves to stay at home and shoot in Cabárceno, the largest wildlife park in Europe. With all of her images dedicated to her father's memory, Marina has won global awards and has exhibited all over the world. In 2015, she was a finalist of the prestigious 'Wildlife Photographer of the Year' contest and since 2015 has joined the Canon Ambassador Team, representing Nature Photography as a Wildlife Photographer with a select few of the top world photographers.

Dennis Frates

Award-winning nature and landscape photographer Dennis Frates developed a love for photography and the natural world from an early age, purchasing his first camera at the age of 14 with money earned from a paper route. Dennis studied physical geography and ecology at college, receiving a master's degree in these subjects. Photography allows him to bring emotion into his own life and to that of others, the physical landscapes he studied providing all the inspiration he could ever wish for. Dennis has photographed extensively in the Western USA and abroad, finding inspiration and creating unique fine-art compositions in some of the world's most awe-inspiring locations.

Ohara Koson

One of the great printmakers of the 20th century, Ohara Koson was most famous for his kacho-e (prints of birds & flowers). He was born in Kanazawa in 1877 and later became a teacher at the Tokyo School of Fine Arts around 1900. Here he met the American professor, Ernest Fenollosa, a huge advocate of traditional Japanese art. With the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese War, photography went out of fashion and war prints were in high demand. This was a great opportunity for Koson to earn a good living from his trade alongside teaching, but he never forgot his love for birds and flowers. Under the encouragement of Professor Fenollosa, Koson began creating kacho-e designs predominantly for Western tastes and was therefore pushed outside the local circle by his Japanese designer neighbours. However, his prints received great success in the United States and Europe! He created prints under three different artist names over his lifetime: Ohara Hoson, Ohara Shoson and Ohara Koson.

Scott Naismith

Scott Naismith graduated in 2000 with a BDes in Illustration and printmaking and has been a full-time artist working from his studio in Glasgow ever since. He is also a lecturer at the Creative Arts department of West College Scotland. With the lochs and glens of the west coast of Scotland as his favourite subject matter, Scott regularly travels around the country looking for inspiration for another landscape painting. His latest work focuses on transitional skies and the colours that emerge as light breaks through cloud. Energetic brush work combines with vivid colours resulting in fantastically vibrant prints. These skies that change from dark to light are Scott's metaphor for optimism and hope. Regularly exhibiting across Scotland, England and the USA, Scott has built an incredible worldwide following of more than 11,000 subscribers and over 1.4 million views on YouTube for his demonstration and tuition videos.

Hope Bainbridge

Hope Bainbridge is an artist and textile designer based in northern California. She received her degree in textile design from the Fashion Institute of Design & Merchandising in Los Angeles, California. She began work as an in-house artist for one of the top companies in the commercial art world in Southern California. Missing the foothills of the Sierra Nevada mountains where she grew up, she and her husband moved back to their small hometown on the outskirts of Yosemite National Forest. She then began freelancing for companies and licensing her artwork. Her work ranges from designing bedroom line collections for kids, removable wallpaper, and specific types of artwork requested by clients. She has since then become a mother who loves being able to work from home and do what she loves. Hope is continually inspired by the natural beauty around her. She works with a variety of mediums including oils, acrylics, watercolours and digital design. Enamoured by the whimsical and lovely, Hope loves to experiment with new artistic styles and aspires to elevate whatever she creates.

Doug Eaton

Doug Eaton spent his childhood in Coleford, Forest of Dean and in the late sixties he went on to attend the Cheltenham College of Art. By 1977 he was painting full time and exhibited at the Hereford Museum as part of a four-man show. After taking some time out from painting, he returned to his passion in 2001 to paint impressions of his Forest of Dean surroundings that he knows so well. Vibrant, vivid colours mix with textures and strong lines and shapes in Doug's paintings. Contrasting elements come together; soft versus hard, light versus dark. He prefers a painterly look over a clinical one and dribbles of paint are left to remind the viewer that it is paint at the end of the day. Working quickly in acrylics, Doug creates angular, refracted images that evoke the engaging landscape of the Forest of Dean.

Soozy Barker

Soozy Barker is a contemporary, abstract artist inspired by the patterns and colours of nature and the world around her. Initially trained by her father, Jon Barker (himself an internationally published artist), Soozy has developed a unique style and specialist techniques. Her painting process entails hours of pouring, splashing, blending and flicking, often using 20-30 brushes, metallic acrylics, oil paints, spray paints, gold and silver leaf, mixing and thinning mediums, and numerous other tools and materials. "I can spend hours without leaving the easel; the process becomes hypnotic. I can't leave a piece until I'm absolutely happy. The surface of the paint has to be as serene as the feeling the image gives the viewer."

Nicola Evans

Nicola Evans was born in a small seaside town on the south coast of England in 1976 and grew up with a keen interest in Art and Design. Her passion for illustration developed while gaining a University degree in Graphic Design and Advertising. Now many years later, she has returned to the coast, working from the home she shares with her husband and daughter. Nicola creates fine art and illustrations for greeting cards, books and framed prints, taking inspiration for her artwork from everyday objects around her home and the coastal surroundings where she spends most of her time.

Little Design Haus

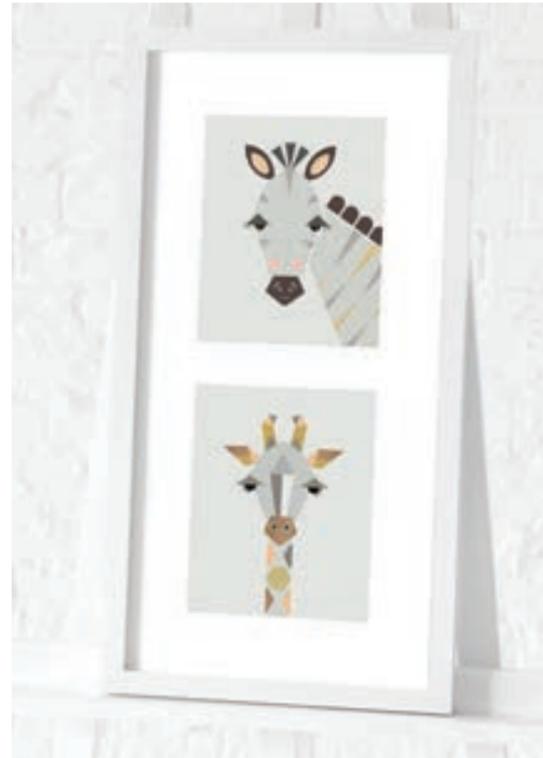

Lyndy Hants is the creative force behind Little Design Haus. Living in Melbourne, Australia, with her husband and three boys, Lyndy works from home in her studio to create her Scandi-inspired designs. After studying Art and Design in Melbourne, she worked on a variety of projects, but it was when she bought her first Mac that she knew she had found her "home". She spent many years designing mostly for the stationery industry, creating wrapping paper, greeting cards, notebooks and stickers. It was after taking a career break to spend time with her children that Little Design Haus was born and she has never looked back. Lyndy's love for Scandinavian design is evident from the first glance at her artwork. She likes to play with fresh colour and clean lines for her wall art with the intention of creating a stylish, uplifting space for children and adults alike.

Summer Thornton

Summer Thornton grew up in Norfolk and studied at the Norwich School of Art & Design. After moving to London in 2000, she set up her studio in South London where she began to create her contemporary watercolours. Summer uses watercolour as she likes its unpredictable nature and the element of freedom and richness that it adds to her work, especially when the colours flow into one another. Summer has a keen eye for design and also likes collecting antiques and vintage clothing.

Aimee Del Valle

British watercolour artist Aimee Del Valle now lives and works in a rural village in France, near Paris. Her early life was spent heavily immersed in the world of theatre and dance, and this provided plenty of inspiration for her other passion: drawing and painting. When Aimee wasn't dancing, she was sketching people, especially dancers, an interest encouraged by her two naturally artistic parents. Dance and the human form remain a strong influence in Aimee's work, and her exquisite ballerinas, portraits and nudes express raw human emotion and feelings using brisk, expressive brushwork. Aimee paints in a comparatively loose and liberal technique whereby she allows the paint to create unique rhythms and imperfections in a reflection of real life. "I am inspired by people, their psychology and their cultures as well as animals and all things living and beautiful."

Henry Rivers

Henry Rivers is a British illustrator whose mission it is to capture the wonderful places of the world in a playful, minimalist style. Having grown up on the Isle of Wight, art was always a big part of his life. As a boy he would go to a watercolour group with his Grandma and was the youngest attendee by a good 60 years! Henry trained as an architect before becoming an illustrator. His keen eye for architecture shines through in his prints with his technical drawing training evident in his re-imagining of famous buildings. Henry's collection of contemporary travel posters combine his passion for travel and love of design. When away from the studio and exploring a new place, Henry will always have his sketchbook in hand, capturing the essence of a location in scribbles and sketches. Henry will re-visit ideas and re-tweak every few weeks. It can often take a year or so to go from scribble to the finished digital piece. The Art Deco travel advert has a huge influence on Henry's work. Inspired by artists such as A.M. Cassandre, his designs take on clean geometric forms. Cool colours and minimalist compositions come together in his modern interpretations of the vintage poster.

Cat Coquillette

Based in Kansas City, Cat Coquillette (pronounced Koh-kuh-let) is an illustrator, designer and lettering artist. Cat gained a double-major in Graphic Design and Illustration at The University of Kansas and also studied infographics, photography and type in Germany. Although she studied in Trier, she refers to her German as "nicht gut". She loves to use watercolour, ink and gouache to create bright pops of colour and hand-lettering, and incorporates a broad range of motifs into her work but has an affinity for painting animals, foliage and intricate patterns. Cat loves to travel and what better way to get creatively recharged than by travelling around the world with her camera, capturing motifs that she incorporates into her artwork. Some of her most recent pieces are inspired by trips to Peru, Vietnam, Hawaii and the American Southwest. Although Cat lives as a digital nomad, hopping from city to city, she will always call Kansas City home.

Living by the sea in Brighton with her two delightful dogs, Sam Toft enjoys making her living from drawing her world of imaginary friends. She never intended to be an artist. She had dreams of becoming a Gymnast, but after spending time in countless jobs and completing a Degree in Business Studies, Sam moved to Liverpool with her sister to attend a BTEC in General Art and Design. She had finally found her vocation! Today in her seaside studio with only her dogs and BBC's Radio 4 for company, Sam's imagination runs free, and her dear Mr Mustard and friends come to life. Sam also likes to write and sculpt, recently creating a whole cast of puppets from her popular characters.

Field & Fur

by Jane Bannon

Norfolk-born Jane Bannon is a self-taught artist, specialising in stunning watercolours of farmyard and domestic animals. Art has always played an important part in Jane's life, and after a career in insurance, she finally decided to devote herself full time to painting. She has found this to be an incredible journey and each of her days is different. She is the happiest when painting an animal, capturing and conveying its innermost thoughts to the viewer. Jane now calls the beautiful market town of Bungay, Suffolk, home. She lives in a listed cottage in the conservation area and can be found most days on Outney Common, walking her dogs Bella & Bertie. The cows who live in the fields opposite her home provide an excellent source of inspiration, along with all of the local dogs she sees on her daily walks!

SCOTT NAISMITH

Scott Naismith graduated in 2000 with BDes in Illustration and printmaking and has been a full-time artist working from his studio in Glasgow ever since. He is also a lecturer at the Creative Arts department of West College Scotland. With the lochs and glens of the west coast of Scotland as his favourite subject matter, Scott regularly travels around the country looking for inspiration for another landscape painting. His latest work focuses on transitional skies and the colours that emerge as light breaks through cloud. Energetic brush work combines with vivid colours resulting in fantastically vibrant prints. These skies that change from dark to light are Scott's metaphor for optimism and hope. Regularly exhibiting across Scotland, England and the USA, Scott has built an incredible worldwide following of more than 11,000 subscribers and over 1.4 million views on YouTube for his demonstration and tuition videos.
