BOSTON PLANTERS

The Boston range features a self-watering system which guarantees a balanced water supply for optimum plant growth.

A specially-designed insert tray in the base of the pot creates a water reservoir which keeps the soil moist, helping plants to thrive even when regular watering is not possible.

These clever planters are ideal for growing flowering plants, herbs or fruit and vegetables. Matching saucers available separately make them suitable for use in the garden or conservatory as well as on the patio or balcony.

A sleek design and four colours inspired by a palette of natural tones means the Boston range will add a touch of contemporary elegance to any living space.

HOW IT WORKS

The capillary action of the compost draws water from the reservoir which, in turn, provides moisture to the rest of the pot.

WATER BUTTS

Our water butt kits are the perfect addition to your sustainable garden. The easiest way to collect, store and dispense rainwater. All sizes come with everything you need to get you started, including stand and diverter.

The diverter features an overflow system for when the butt is full and our easy to assemble stand provides height and stability.

Internally threaded holes for taps and connections mean the water butts can be installed with no drilling required. Our water butts make it easy to fill up your watering cans and tend to your garden.

Made from recycled materials, the Whitefurze water butt kits are an essential product for any garden. Simply link the water butt to your down pipe to collect rain water for a healthier garden saving water, the environment and your bank balance.
