ABOUT ME

Most mornings I awoke to blue skies, golden sun and the heady, sensuous fragrances of exotic flowers, blossoms and tangy spices drifting over the hills and valleys of Andalucia in Southern Spain. It was breath taking, and I was entranced by the wonder of it all.

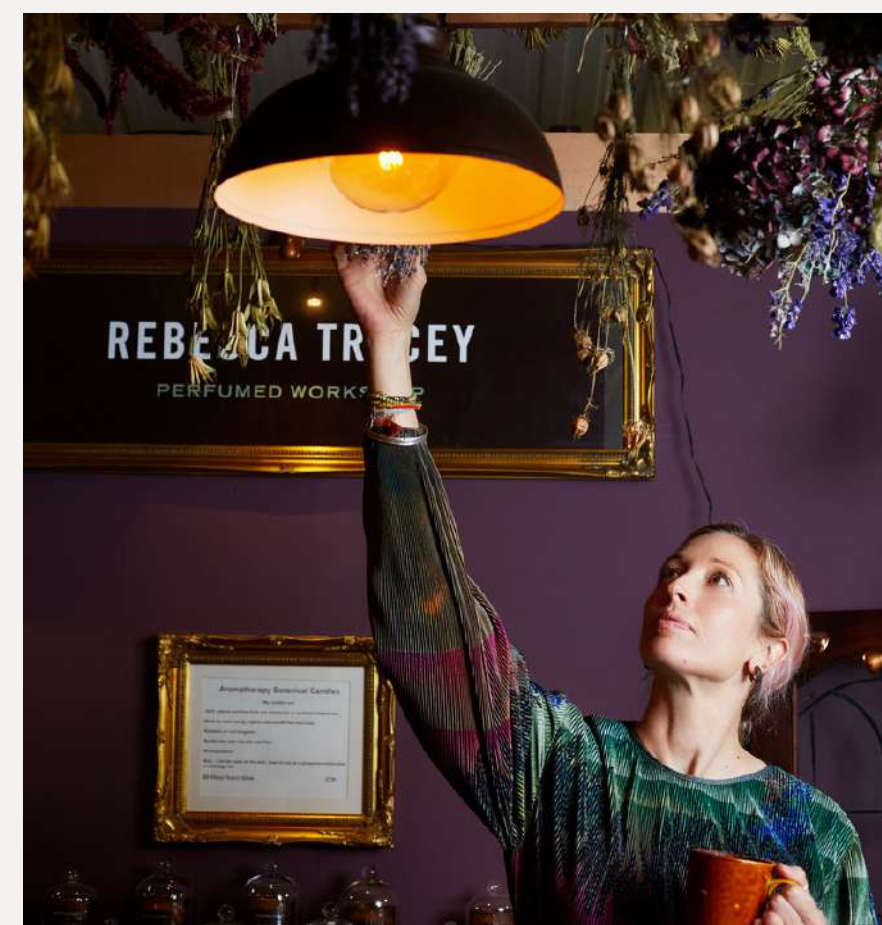

At the time my husband Danny and I were running our successful Terra Sana restaurants in Marbella, where our credo of using only the finest, freshest ingredients were always first and foremost within our business.

During this time Danny's oldest friend lived in Southern France, and began to work with essential oils, and create natural perfumery as he was allergic to synthetic fragrances. We LOVED the ethos of his business, and we quickly realised that our restaurants carried the exact same values; only 100% fresh, good, healthy food from the earth. Not a microwave insight, and no processed or packaged food. When it was time to sell up and move on from our catering days, we decided to join forces with Nicholas, and the first incarnation of our business was born.

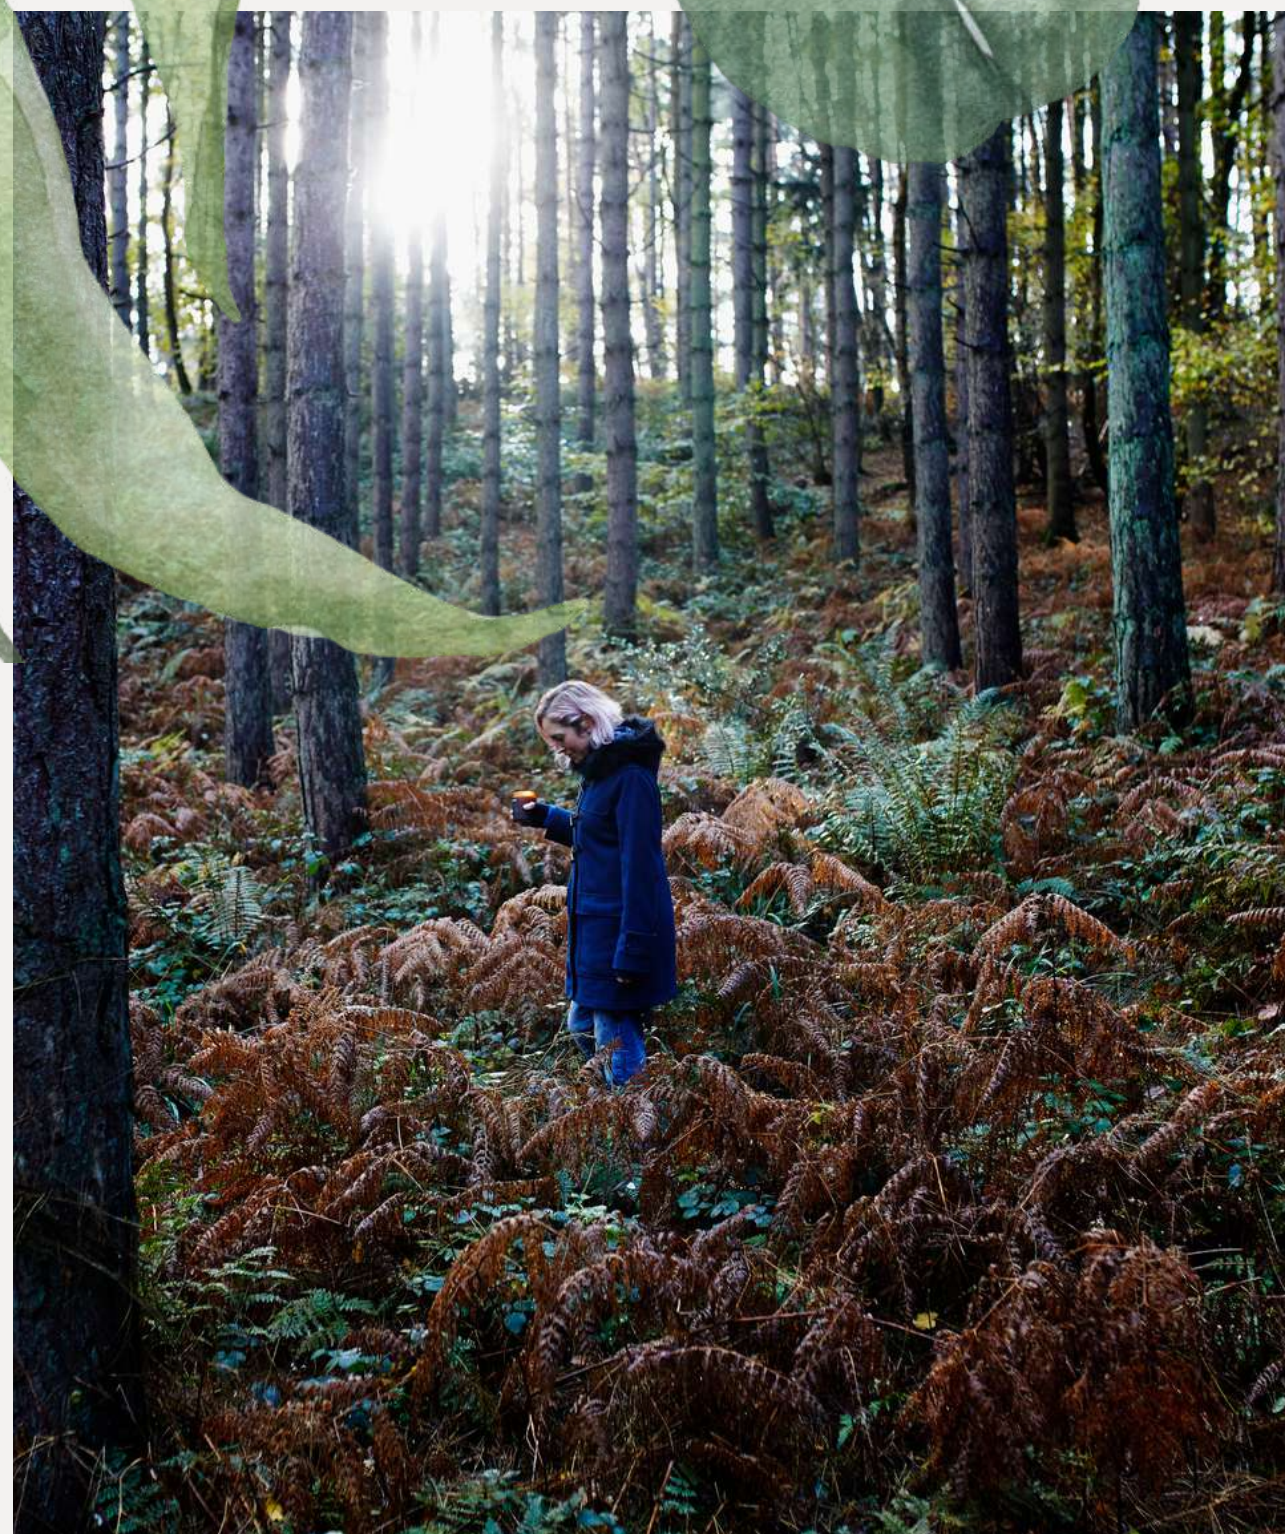

A few years, a couple of children, and a move back to the UK has seen many changes and growth in our blossoming company but at the heart of it all, is our original, pure and organic ethos to lovingly hand make gorgeous scents and products to share with you. We hope you enjoy them.

Warmest perfumed regards,

Rebecca

Ethos

We believe that natural is best. Therefore, we make sure our products and production methods are safe to you and the environment.

Candles

Our candles are 100% natural.

We use only non-genetically modified soya wax, and 100% pure essential oils. There are no synthetics, parabens, or petro chemicals.

Our candles burn significantly longer than paraffin candles due to their cooler and slower burn. Our 120g Travel Candle, lasts between 20 to 25 hours. The 30cl standard size candle boasts an impressive 50 to 60 hours of burn time, while our luxurious 1000g Luxury Tall 3 Wick Candle offers an approximate 100 hours of soothing, aromatic enjoyment.

They can also be used as a fabulous moisturiser as the soya is full of vitamin E, which is wonderful for hydration, and absorbs into the skin amazingly, leaving it soft, supple and smelling gorgeous! Simply place your finger into the melted wax (its temperature is lukewarm so you'll never burn yourself!) get a small amount, and rub onto skin.

Diffusers

Our luxurious rattan reed diffusers are a wonderful way to naturally fragrance any room.

We use only the finest 100% pure essential oils mixed with a non toxic, alcohol free base. They are a safe and long-lasting method of scenting the air without the need for an open flame, chemicals, or flammable alcohol. There is no evaporation of the liquid so months later, your bottle will remain just as full, and smelling wonderful!

The diffusers work through the wicking of the fragrance up through the honeycomb like reeds, which then disperse the fragrance into the air, and simply removing the reeds and replacing them back in the bottle upside down will release a fresh new burst of fragrance into the room.

SHE SELLS SANCTUARY:
Create a safe space at home

On my last adventure before lockdown, the wonderful team at Hotel Indigo in Stratford-Upon-Avon introduced their Clues to the Neighbourhood during a perfume workshop with local creator Rebecca Tracey. Who better to teach us about using scent to create sanctuary at home?

Words: ANNA WILLIATT

How did you first become interested in scent?
RT: Like many girls growing up, I'd always make my own homemade perfume from flower petals! That interest disappeared for a while. Then, all of a sudden, one of my husband's oldest friends moved to the south of France and started working with essential oils. We visited him and I became overwhelmed with it again. I was ensconced in the land of perfume and it just really resonated. I guess perfumery just found its way!

What a re-discovery!
RT: Absolutely! I started by making candles and it was a natural progression of playing, learning something that feels good. I started by loving one smell, thinking how I could expand from there, what I could create. So, it's been a real evolution and a learning curve. I always say when I run the perfume workshops that I'm not trained but I know emotionally how scent makes me feel, where it takes me.

Sign us up! What scents shall we look out for to create sanctuary at home?
RT: There are certain oils like lavender which is calming and relaxing - that everyone knows the world over. It's less known that black pepper is amazing for anxiety. You can create calming scents in two ways: in the relaxing, bring it down kind of approach - Frankincense is grounding and great for that. Or you can still get that sense of calm with a more uplifting scent - eucalyptus is amazing for creating balance, peace and calm but in an uplifting way. Some people resonate with the relaxing, peaceful sea vibes but citrus notes can do the same thing with a different presence. I recently launched my new Florence candle to support the NHS and that's gone down so well. I wanted to create something with the feeling of blossoming, so I started with neroli and added in oils to make it uplifting and happy. We've got bergamot, which is amazing for anxiety and an injection of springtime through grapefruit and tangerine. So, in terms of creating your own scents, sometimes I build from a theme, sometimes it's just trial and error and I see how we go!

RELAXING RITUALS AND WHERE TO FIND THEM

Our whole team have been embracing fresh flowers, favourite summery perfumes - and the scent of baking cookies - to create a sense of normality. We ask some of our favourite small businesses for their recommended rituals.

Carol Bryant, Bryant & Bloom
"Many flowers and plants have a particular symbolism or association with a particular emotion in the Victorian tradition of the 'Language of Flowers', and these can be incorporated into a selection of flowers such as our Wellbeing Bouquets. These benefits along with the air cleansing abilities of many plants and flowers mean they are an essential part of a happy and healthy environment."
||| Bryantandbloom.co.uk

LiloLove
"We've been relying on our Magic Centre oil. Vetiver is a grassroot from India that has extremely deep roots bringing grounding, when your head is spinning with everything happening. The obsidian black crystals are amazing for protection and sucking away negative energy."
||| LiloLove

Mud Urban Flowers
"One of the most important ways to create a positive environment is through scent. Around 75% of our emotions per day come from smell. We are missing sharing our fresh blooms at this time, but our own blend natural soy candles bring the holistic scents of flowers home - we're loving Jasmine at the moment which is a flower often used to encourage mindfulness."

Give twice

Give a gift that gives back this year with products whose profits go to charity and support the work and research they do. Words: Tamsin Wressell

Lush Grassroots perfume
 £50 for 100ml. uk.lush.com
 Lush's new perfume starts with lighter floral notes before building up a warmth that permeates. All proceeds go to grassroots organisations around the world working with animal welfare, human rights and environmental protection — the cork top is biodegradable, too.

Jack Wolfskin Ecoloader 12 Bag
 £55. jack-wolfskin.co.uk
 This pack, made from 100% recycled materials, uses comfortable BLOOM foam padding, made from algae and renewable biomass feedstock. Profits go towards tackling dangerous algae blooms, which are causing an imbalance in the ecosystem in fresh water environments.

Limited Edition Wildlife Warrior Elephant Gin
 £42.90. uk.elephant-gin.com
 Elephant London Dry gin combines rare African botanicals with fresh apples and pure spring water from Germany and 15% of bottle profits go to Big Life Foundation, a conservation organisation in East Africa tackling elephant poaching.

Kohl 3s3ntials makeup brushes
 £34.99. kohlibreatives.com
 Super soft circular, rectangular and square brushes to cover all makeup bases, from applying foundation to lipstick. The company is completely non-profit, with all the money raised going to Kohl Kares to primarily support individuals transitioning from one gender to another.

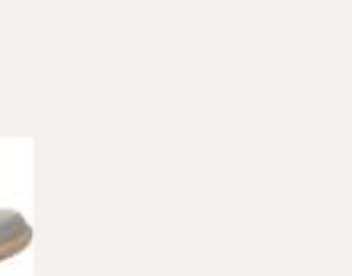

SEP Jordan Koutubia cushion cover
 £163. sepjordan.com
 SEP Jordan works to bring empowerment to women in refugee camps by providing training and employment — all their accessories are hand embroidered in Jordan by refugee artists, including the Koutubia cushion cover, which can be made bespoke to any dimensions.

QASA QASA Blantyre storage jars
 £39. qasoqaso.co.uk
 These jars are made out of old wine bottles, with a hand-carved mahogany wood lid, by an organisation in Malawi that nurtures local talent. Profits aid interest-free loans to help local artists build sustainable businesses. More homeware is available online.

Rebecca Tracey Florence candle
 £32. rebeccatracey.co.uk
 Hand poured in England using soya wax (which is better for the environment), pure essential oils and a natural cotton wick. This candle uses soothing notes of tangerine, bergamot, rosemary and neroli, with £5 of each sale being donated to the NHS to support key workers.

TOMS REPREVE India Slippers
 £55. toms.com/uk
 These slippers are 100% vegan and made from recycled polyester, with a cosy faux fur lining and a rubber sole for indoors and outdoors. One third of profits go to the Covid-19 Global Giving Fund to help organisations around the globe including UK-based mental health charity The Mix.

Maker of the month

Fragrant notes hit the sweet spot

Rebecca runs her family business from her boutique workshop at Bonds Lifestyle in Stratford-upon-Avon, where she lovingly handcrafts vegan-friendly, 100% natural products that are good for the body, soul and environment. The collection includes perfume, body and bath products, as well as scents for the home including candles, diffusers, oils and fragrances. Rebecca runs monthly workshops for those keen to learn the art of perfumery; a journey of memories and a feeling for the scents without any preconceptions. rebeccatracey.co.uk
