HOME COLLECTION

Our signature fabrics in stripes, plains and checks are handcrafted into a capsule collection of home accessories, all designed, woven and sewn here in Lancashire, the beating heart of the UK textile industry. Here at Ian Mankin, we are passionate about British-made products, and are dedicated to protecting our nation's traditional craft skills and the unique industrial landscape of which we form a part.

This carefully curated range brings our classic aesthetic into simple but practical home accessories that coordinate beautifully with our fabric collections and beyond.

Our sumptuous throws in recycled cotton provide comfort and an effortlessly stylish look. Combine these with our cushions, doorstops and draught excluders- perfect for layering a look; clash stripes on stripes or build up a tonal look with plains and textures.

DEVON STRIPE

RECYCLED COTTON THROW
170CM X 180CM

Our popular Devon Stripe design makes for a bold motif on this new throw. Woven in recycled cotton, from post-production textile waste, this is a flat woven blanket with a satisfying weight. The colour of these throws is derived from the recycled materials, eliminating the need for additional dyes and enhancing the product's eco-friendly appeal.

BAMBURGH

RECYCLED COTTON THROW
170CM X 180CM

The Bamburgh throw features an intricate stripe, blending classic style with bold colourways and a unique negative pattern on the reverse side. This flat-woven throw not only carries a substantial weight but also boasts a generous size. What sets it apart is that the colours are derived directly from the recycled materials, eliminating the need for any additional dyes.

“Our mill has been in business in Burnley, Lancashire for over 150 years”

IMAGES COURTESY OF PICKLE PICTURES

EST. 1871
M A D E I N
 T H E U K

Over 150 years of heritage and passion for our craft goes into every metre of fabric we weave, all designed and made at our Lancashire mill.

We actively champion the craft of weaving, tapping into a long history of weaving skill and pushing the boundaries of the loom to develop fabrics and homewares that endure both the changing tides of fashion and the demands of a modern home.

The Ian Mankin business is now cradled in one of the last remaining working textile mills in Lancashire - home of UK textile production. A place we are truly proud to be located.

An authentic fabric house; our mill is lovingly driven by a passionate team of weavers and textile designers, and yes- it’s in our blood. Our mill has been in the same family for over 150 years and is located in Burnley, Lancashire, which was the world centre of the industrialised cotton industry. The mill is the last remaining traditional cotton weaver in a town that once boasted over 100,000 looms – more than one for every man, woman and child!

Designing with the loom helps us to develop an aesthetic that is unequivocally Ian Mankin. An elegant, enduring style combined with the high quality of our fabrics and home accessories means our products are made to last.

We love stripes; it is at the core of our collections. The simplicity and classic elegance of a stripe allows us to experiment with colour and construction whilst retaining the signature Ian Mankin aesthetic. ‘But everyone can do a stripe’; we hear you say. However, not everyone can do an Ian Mankin one. A good stripe isn’t only about the colours that work together; it’s also about the negative space between them that creates a quality pattern that looks beautiful and is a pleasure to work with.
