Our STORY

Over the past decade ankole has evolved into a symbol of responsible entrepreneurship and community collaboration Explore below to discover the inspiration behind our brand and the genesis of Ankole

Nestled in the bustling heart of Kampala, Uganda, Lesley Magnay, ankole's founder embarked on a transformative journey in 2011. Amidst the lively atmosphere of a local food market, a chance conversation with an artisan passionate about sustainable materials sparked Lesley's visionary idea. The majestic Ankole cows grazing along the roadsides became the catalyst for Lesley's curiosity, especially about the often-overlooked horns discarded as waste.

This sowed the seeds for Ankole's inception in 2012, initially as East African Trading, later rebranded. Lesley's initial vision, conceived during a customary Friday coffee ritual with her husband, evolved into a remarkable collection of exquisite homewares crafted from recycled Ankole cow horns. Over the past decade, Ankole has grown beyond a business; it is now a symbol of responsible entrepreneurship and community collaboration Lesley's commitment extends beyond the creation of beautiful products; she has cultivated a network of local, family-run businesses within a mile of her Kampala home. Ankole stands as a testament to the transformative impact of sustainable business practices and community engagement.

Our BRAND VALUES

Giving Back

Situated in Kampala, we actively contribute to the growth of small Ugandan enterprises, providing essential additional income within the local community.

Quality We Can Promise

Our dedicated team works to ensure the creation of pieces that exemplify the highest standards of quality. Through unwavering commitment and meticulous attention to detail, we produce artisanal items that not only meet but exceed expectations, embodying the essence of superior craftsmanship.

Our Way

Our aspiration is to be synonymous with both elegance and innovation, seamlessly merging sustainability with premium products.

SUPPORTING SMALL

At Ankole, our dedicated team is committed to upholding a strong connection to Uganda, actively supporting small businesses across the country. We source our horns directly from local farmers, providing crucial additional income to rural communities with limited financial resources.

Our commitment to sustainability extends to our packaging, crafted from recycled paper and banana fiber by a small enterprise on the Entebbe Road. This initiative predominantly employs women, and our gift boxes are meticulously crafted by someone with whom we share a longstanding connection

In 2018, Ankole took a meaningful step by gifting Melissa, a friend of Lesley's, with a sewing machine. Today, Melissa not only crafts our horn carrier bags but also operates her own business, creating and selling dresses within her local community. This initiative stands as a testament to Ankole's dedication to making a positive impact by fostering economic opportunities and empowering individuals within the Ugandan community.

Exclusive One Off Pieces

Harmonizing the use of natural materials with unparalleled craftsmanship enables us to craft exclusive pieces of the utmost quality.

Ankole Cattle Horns

Ankole Cattle Horns

Available in five sizes, our Ankole cattle horns are meticulously sanded and polished, unveiling their natural colors for a striking visual impact. Sold in pairs, they make stunning centerpieces in your home or unique gifts for 21st birthdays or weddings. The horns undergo a detailed process, including heating in oil, removal of internal structures, and meticulous sanding and polishing, with the entire preparation taking a day's work based on the size

All our horns are measured with precision, taking into account their height, width, and curve, ensuring that each piece meets the highest standards of quality and aesthetic appeal.
