THE DALITS

For over 3000 years the Dalits – or Untouchables – have been positioned at the bottom of India's society and are subject to the most aggressive and dehumanising abuse. They are born into a culture that devalues them from birth with society considering them lower than animals. The term 'Dalit' literally translates to downtrodden or oppressed and there are 250 million Dalits who are exposed to this injustice.

The injustice of the Dalits is one of the biggest human rights issues in the world today.

DALIT GOODS

Dalit Goods create employment for Dalit men and women who otherwise wouldn't have that opportunity, due to the caste they were born into. The goods are all fairly traded. Part of the profit from your purchase of Dalit Goods products also goes towards the work of our partner charity, Life Association. This makes a real difference to the lives of many Dalit children who would otherwise receive no education, and helps provide a place where they can grow up in a safe and loving environment.

OUR ETHOS

We are committed to the highest standards of ethical and environmental responsibility in every area of Dalit Goods, and combine western design with eastern skill to achieve this.

Our soaps use 100% natural products, are free from animal testing, vegan-friendly and palm oil free.

Our products come in biodegradable cardboard packaging, wrapped in coconut string with a commitment to phasing out any remaining plastic in our packaging.
