OUR STORY

Charlotte Walsh, Founder of The Silicone Straw Company and mum of three, is on a mission to make it easier for families to live greener.

Charlotte lives with her family in the Yorkshire Dales and along with the holidaymakers loves to spend sunny days down by the river with her children – picnicking and paddling. But sometimes the aftermath isn't always picturesque: Plastic bottles, coffee cups, sandwich wrappers and plastic straws wash downstream.

Seeing the impact that single use plastics can have on the area got her thinking and she used her 15 years manufacturing experience to create a new range of reusable silicone straws. The straws are convenient alternatives to single-use plastic, are beautifully designed and made in the UK using the highest quality food-grade silicone.

“FOR ME IT WAS ABOUT CREATING PRODUCTS THAT ALLOWED PEOPLE TO DO THE RIGHT THING WITHOUT NOTICING, AND EVEN BETTER IF THE RESULT WAS A BETTER EXPERIENCE THAN PEOPLE WERE USED TO.”

WHY REUSABLE STRAWS ARE SO IMPORTANT

The UK government has released a 25-year strategy which aims to reduce the amount of avoidable plastic waste that inevitably ends up in the sea by 2042. This includes single use items such as plastic straws.

In October 2020, the UK banned single use plastic straws with the aim of reducing marine pollution. The plastic straw ban, coupled with hectic consumer lifestyles, the increased popularity of eating on-the-go and the growth in online meal delivery services throughout the UK, has resulted in an upward trend in consumers opting for reusable straw options.

Paper straws do not fulfil the needs of the customers as they often disintegrate during use. Stainless steel straws are not suitable or safe for many customers.

MAKING WAVES

During the last 3 years, The Silicone Straw Company has saved around 2 million single use straws from being sent to landfill - illustrating the benefit of reusing over recycling.

Every supply chain has an impact on the planet and small value items like this are often shipped half-way around the world to be used once and then thrown away. Buying something that can be used over and over again therefore multiplies the benefit many times over.
