Flower Meadow in Blue Inspired by William Kilburn

The design is inspired by William Kilburn (1745-1818), regarded as one of the 18th century's most prominent calico printers. This design is based on one of his beautiful and intricate designs and demonstrates his skill of matching vivid floral motifs, juxtaposed with exotic leaves on a deep blue backdrop. This design is licensed by V&A.

Hyacinth Inspired by William Morris

Hyacinth was one of many floral wallpaper designs created by William Morris for his own company. The design displays a symmetrical cutaway view of a red hyacinth flower, surrounded by white and green leaves with other wildflowers on a light peach backdrop. Morris often found inspiration from things in and around his own environment. Many flowers he featured in his pieces were inspired by his own garden.

Honeysuckle Inspired by May Morris

This pattern was inspired by a wallpaper designed by May Morris, daughter of William Morris. Inspired by her father, May was a gifted artisan and an embroidery designer. The Honeysuckle design based on a pattern of intertwining woody stems, curling leaves and fluted flowers. The design marries botanical literalism and stylized motif. Honeysuckle was originally made as wallpaper in 1883, it still remains popular today.
