SEASON COLOR STORY

When we close our eyes, we can recall a specific scene from the past and along with its familiar ambience, a certain color can be associated with it, leaving a strong imprint in our memory.

What colors were inspired by your hometown or a place you visited?

A unique color linked to that special place unravels a story to tell. We prepared some seasonal color stories to share with you and wish to continue posting more going forward.

Come escape with us to various cities around the world and discover how each seasonal color made its way to NISHIGUCHI KUTSUSHITA.

BERLIN, GERMANY

With the wish to deliver our socks to the world and one backpack, I arrived in Berlin to observe the exhibits. I believed that Germany would be the starting point for expanding our products to EU countries.

July in Berlin has good weather and clean air. It was so comfortable that it made me want to share with the people of Berlin the muggy summers in Japan which was the extreme opposite.

On my way to the exhibit, I made my way through the streets of Berlin. The historic Berlin Wall is now a colourful art monument. I enjoyed the historical buildings combined with art during my walk. I see why they are known as the city of young artists.

After my stroll, I reach the exhibition. I was astounded by how open and large the space is. It was like an outdoor festival. I wondered how people would react if we displayed our socks here. Now I was dreaming big.

There were so many shops that caught my eye, and I was overwhelmed. I decided to go to an Aufguss sauna which is an original German ritual where water is thrown on hot sauna stones and then a sauna master waves a towel in the air to masterfully distribute the steam. It was infused with lavender oil providing complete mind and body relaxation.

Saunas help me to completely detox both mind and body. I always know what I want or ought to do when I complete a session. I had gone in to relax but came out recharged and full of energy.

Journeys always lead to positive turning points in life for me. This trip to Berlin provided me with new perspectives and I was ready and excited to gain more inspiration from the city.
