Where great ideas grow.

The apple never falls far.

I remember standing in my grandfather's workshop as a young boy and thinking, wow, you could make anything in here.

Pop, as we called him, had lived most of his life on a farm in rural South Australia, and by the time I arrived, he had collected one of every tool you could imagine. Pop had his tools hung up like wallpaper, a perfectly planned mosaic that covered every square inch of his shed. No two tools were the same; there was only enough room for one of each, and I could only imagine what unique and clever purpose each tool had.

In the middle of Pop's workshop was a giant bench made from the thickest timber you've ever seen, covered in half-finished projects and things he was in the middle of fixing. Sadly, he passed away far too early in life, and when he did, it was as if his workshop became frozen in time. The smell of the sawn timber and motor oil was locked in the air, and if it weren't for the cobwebs, you'd have thought he was in there yesterday.

I spent many a Christmas combing through the tools in Pop's shed. One by one, I'd pick up his tools and ask my Dad what each one was for. For a handy bloke, it always amazed me that there was a lot in there my Dad didn't know much about. But I knew my Pop had a reason for each - he didn't hold onto junk.

As I sifted through the projects on his workbench and wondered what he would have made next, I got my first taste of "The Inventor's Dilemma". Like an artist staring at a blank canvas or a cook standing in a kitchen, if you can make anything, what do you make?

I was fresh out of school and in the middle of an accounting degree when I started Dreamfarm. I had no idea I was going to end up making kitchen gadgets; I just knew the only way I was going to feel useful was to make tools that other people used. But if you can make anything, what do you make?

I had a handful of different ideas and each solved a problem I thought was worth solving. I chose to start with something I could make with parts from the local hardware store, and by chance this product was perfect for kitchenware stores. By the time my first product, Grindenstein, was available at a few dozen retailers, it didn't make sense to make anything I couldn't sell to these same stores. So, I turned my focus to kitchen tools.

Well, let me tell you, Lady Luck didn't just open a door for me; she pushed me through it. It turns out a kitchen is just a workshop inside a home. Kitchens are full of tools, each uniquely designed for specific jobs, and you need the right tool to do the job right. It was an inventor's dream, I'd hit the jackpot.

My idea for Dreamfarm was simple. If we made tools that solved problems, our tools would be useful. If we made useful tools no one else made, we might just have a business. And if we made new tools that were so useful and made so much sense you wouldn't do the job any other way, we could change the way jobs got done - and then we'd have a purpose. The rest, as they say, is history.

With 50+ products to our name, you might think we'd be stumped. What could we possibly dream up next?

Well, to all those who thought everything worth inventing had already been invented, we'd like to think we've been quietly proving you wrong for the last 20 years.

We've now won a dozen Red Dot Design Awards, including the last 6 years in a row, and 3 in 2023. 5 of our top 10 products in 2023 were launched in the last 2 years. In fact, Fluicer, our star product of 2023, won a Red Dot Design Award, a Good Design Award, a Global Innovation Award, and an Excellence in Housewares Award. Oprah selected it as one of her favourites on the O List, and at the time of writing this, Fluicer has just been selected as one of TIME Magazine's 200 Best Inventions of 2023. Call me crazy, but it feels like we're just getting started.

So, as we continue to grow onwards and upwards, one problem-solving tool at a time, I like to think that our toughest days are behind us, and our best ideas are yet to come. We're never going to be a company that makes lots of anything, just like the tools in my grandfather's workshop. We're only going to make one of each, and we're going to make sure it's the best.

And if Pop were a cook, I'd like to think a few of our tools would be on his walls. Not just because he was a proud grandfather but because our tools are so unique and so useful that they would have been the only ones he would have owned.

The Story of Dreamfarm

Once upon a time in a land down under, a twenty-two-year-old Lego-loving-MacGyver-wannabe named Alex took his first invention, Grindenstein, down to the local markets to seek his fortune.

As luck would have it, on that day the owner of a nearby kitchenware store happened upon Alex with his creation. 'Hooray!' the man exclaimed, 'people have been asking me for something that does just this, but alas, no one has ever made one. I'd love to sell these in my store!'

It was on that day in 2003 that Dreamfarm, the problem-solving company that grows ideas into inventions, was born.

Three years of selling Grindensteins by day and assembling them by night, would pass before Alex had gathered enough pennies to launch Dreamfarm's next big idea, Scizza, the pizza scissors! One great idea had grown into two, and soon inventions three and four would follow. As if by magic, Dreamfarm was now available in over 500 stores, all of them hungry to see what nifty new things Dreamfarm would dream up next.

Meanwhile, on a cattle farm not so far away, Phil, a clever curly-haired kid who never could sit still, was finishing up design school and applied to join Dreamfarm. Alex and Phil quickly discovered they shared a rock-solid belief that great design must solve a problem and to be the best, you must do what has never been done before.

Together, they worked to invent, design, create, and make their ideas into the world's best and most useful things.

Like all great ideas do, Dreamfarm was growing.

Next to join the team was Cate, Alex's never-could-keep-a-secret sister, who would make it her mission in life to make sure the whole world knew what they were up to. A decade later, through blood, sweat, tears and Cate singing from the rooftops about their great ideas, Dreamfarm products could be found in thousands of stores around the world.

These days, the team at Dreamfarm is bigger, but they still do all of their inventing and design work themselves in sunny Brisbane, Australia, and they now have over forty original products to their name. If you're ever in town, you should pop in and say 'G'day'. Cate would love to tell you all about their latest creations, and while you'll have to do a little searching for them, somewhere out the back among all the tools and prototypes, you'll still find Alex and Phil in their workshop, tinkering away on their never-ending search for problems that need solving.

Different by design.

Award-winning design is not an accident. It starts with identifying problems worth solving, obsessively prototyping, and refining solutions that leave no millimetre to chance. Ultimately, it's about creating something new that seems so obvious people will wonder how they ever lived without it.

For some, ideas like these are a once in a lifetime flash of genius.

At Dreamfarm, it's what we do.

x4

101 uses. Stuck it and see.

Jot is the hang-it-all suction hook with countless uses. It sucks or sticks on to hold, hang, or hook just about anything, anywhere.

Designed to suck. And stick.

Jot works best on shiny surfaces like glass or tiles. To use Jot on rough surfaces, suction it to the disc provided and use the tape on the disc to stick your Jot anywhere.

A weight off your mind.

Time, surface texture, and cleanliness affect how much weight Jot can hold but we've tested Jots on mirrors holding over 450g / 1.0lb and they have stuck for years.

A trick worth jotting down.

Jot is made from PVC, which has a memory. If it becomes flat after being stuck down for a long time, a few minutes in hot water will return Jot to its original suction cup shape.

Make sure the suction cup is clean before sticking it to a smooth, flat surface. Clean by wiping it with damp cloth.
