dinosaurs

 We're brachiosaurus. It means arm lizard - because our front legs are longer than our hind legs - a bit like giraffes. We were a Jurassic period and we lived in North America and Europe. We were about 20 metres long and weighed about 20 tonnes. We lived for about 100 years.	 I'm not actually a dinosaur - I'm a reptile (but don't tell anyone)! My name means thick-plated lizard and I lived in the late Cretaceous period. My neck was so long I could only lift it at the end of the water and I was a very slow swimmer. I was about 10 metres long and weighed about 10 tonnes. I was a very slow swimmer. I was about 10 metres long and weighed about 10 tonnes.
 Well hello! I'm aardonyx! I'm an early Jurassic herbivore and my name means earth lion. I was only about 30 feet long and weighed about 2 tonnes. I was a very slow walker. I was about 30 feet long and weighed about 2 tonnes.	 We're pteranodons! Our name means winged and toothless - guess why? We were a very early flying reptile and not a dinosaur, and had no teeth, big brains and good eyesight - perfect for catching the fish and squid we live on.
 We are oviraptors! Our name means egg thief - people thought we were egg-eaters because we were first discovered near evidence of a dinosaur egg. Turns out those were probably our own eggs! We were a very early dinosaur and we lived in North America and Europe. We were about 20 metres long and weighed about 2 tonnes.	 My name is araucanoraptor. Remember it! I eat meat. Lots of it. Especially other dinosaurs. My big wings are very strong. I was about 10 metres long and weighed about 10 tonnes. I was a very slow walker. working wheels

 eat sleep doodle Welcome to our learning page about all things wheels!	 eat sleep doodle This here is the Austin Healey sports car, which you may recognise from the James Bond films. This classic British car became known as 'the most famous car in the world' after it starred in the Bond film 'Goldfinger' in 1964. Since then the car has become synonymous with the fictional British spy, like the car is synonymous with James Bond, more and more for his good looks!
 eat sleep doodle You probably recognise this one... London's iconic red double-decker bus, which has become a great symbol of the city and actually of the UK! These buses were first introduced at the start of the 20th Century. At the time several different companies owned the buses that operated in London and they were in competition with each other. Each bus was usually painted a colour depending on its route around the city. But in 1907 the London General Omnibus Company decided to paint all of their buses a vivid red. Pastime artist R.C. had used a number at the front of each bus to distinguish	 eat sleep doodle Have you ever seen the motor called 'The Conqueror' which is a very clever machine designed to harvest cereal crops as efficiently as possible.
