*Collaborating with emerging artists will be the main characteristic our brand has. We would love to develop the designs inspired by the artist's artwork including their creativity methodology, materials used in artworks, or themes and discourse discussing, and apply them with the language of design. We seek to produce a catalog of products that sits in between merchandise and artwork. It can be understood as functional artwork or symbolised 'furniture'. ## OUR PHILOSOPHY

Uniqueness:

The label UNUM derives its name from the uniqueness of our products—one out of many: the one and the only. Unum Studio focuses solely on a unique product range not available through mass-market channels. We present the serendipity of how the finite material intersects with a surprising work of art.

Tangibility:

Unum Studio is designated to experiment and challenge the conventional distance between audience and artwork through touch. We seek to transfer art into products that sit in-between merchandise and artwork in order to open new ways of engagement for the audience at the same time infusing functional value to the artwork.

SUSTAINABILITY

While fashion continues to be an important component of human communication, the world has become more aware of its massive influence on the environment, climate change, and biodiversity. Around 85% of textiles thrown away are dumped into landfills or burned. We are guided by the goal of minimizing our influence as much as possible by acting as responsible global citizens, treating the Earth with respect, and working to repair it.

Upcoming collection 'FEED ME'

April 2022

For Spring Summer 22, Unum studio presents a series of unique products that are illuminated by a contemporary painting, 'FEED ME,' created by artist-designer Rebekah Guo.

FEED ME
Oil on Canvas
Rebekah Guo, 2021

'FEED ME' recounts a closed human relationship sensorially and emotionally that offers a journey into intimacy and closeness. The two round objects, deformed by the squeezing of each other, embody the incarnation of two attaching human bodies. While the pandemic has disrupted and halted the touching between people, the work 'FEED ME' generates a peaceful scene that poetically realigns the definition of 'close contact' with warmth and peacefulness. Under the umbrella of reforming and highlighting touch, we transformed the concept of the painting into quilted experimental designs in order to activate the audience's instinct of touching while offering diversity to approach the arts.

Rebekah Guo, 2020

New collection 'FRESH UNPEELING' February 2022

Unum Studio is presenting a collection of upcycling designer bags made exclusive fabrics from designer, Rebekah Guo's graduate fashion collection 'FRESH UNPEELING' at Central Saint Martins, 2020.

As the printed fabric is limited to specific collections, each tote bag is special, unique, and exclusive.

"My fundamental inspiration for my collection 'Fresh Unpeeling' comes from a fascination with fruit and flesh colours and feel. It is exciting to observe the inside after peeling off a fruit skin; the unpeeling becomes release stress and refreshing again.

Fruit inspired hand-painted print with muted texture, and fresh colours on layered silk organza fabrics complement the feminine body. The combination of slender dress shapes, fluffy fur, and metallic Devore fabric shows the skin from hollows, reveal hints of skin to flaunt the real beauty of the women."
