At Whistler Tree we are driven by our wish to create items that are not only beautiful but also have a positive impact on the environment. HIGHLY SUSTAINABLE

Our main source of material is Cork leather and it is one of the most sustainable materials in the world. We only buy our Cork material from the most reputable suppliers; it is produced in factories which have eco and sustainability credentials.

We adopt a slow fashion approach, so we are careful to design items which will not be out of fashion next year. In the design process we consider the construction, ensuring items will last a long time, and where possible we build in versatility and function, so our customers get value for money.

Harvesting the bark from a cork oak tree every 9-10 years helps the tree to grow and live longer. Stripping the bark does not harm the tree, as the cork tree continues to mature and go through harvest; the tree is able to absorb more carbon dioxide to support its bark regeneration. As a result, the harvested trees will filter more carbon dioxide than those left untouched, resulting in cleaner air for everyone.

The harvested cork bark is then turned into cork fabric by skilled artisans. The result is an incredibly soft and durable material which is waterproof, anti-bacterial, fire-resistant, and best of all, vegan. Every piece displays a unique pattern native to the tree that it was harvested from, so each product is unique.

Other materials we use include organic cotton for our liners, and all-natural vegetable dyes. No living things are harmed in the process of creating our products and no harmful chemicals are used.
