

Gyutto Onigiri-san Onigiri Case

This compact case is designed specifically for carrying homemade onigiri (rice balls) while maintaining their shape.

The lid fits securely, helping to keep the contents in place during transport without the need for additional bands or accessories, allowing for a clean and simple product presentation.

The structure protects food from being crushed, making it suitable for everyday lunch use.

In addition to food storage, the case can also be used for children's snacks or as a small storage container for accessories, offering flexible merchandising possibilities.

Gyutto Onigiri-san Tenugui (traditional Japanese hand towel)

This tenugui is produced at a dyeing workshop in Sakai, Osaka, using the traditional Chusen dyeing technique, which originated in Osaka during the Meiji era. By dyeing stacked fabrics from both sides, Chusen creates soft color bleeding and beautiful gradation, with patterns clearly visible on both sides. The towel can be used not only as a hand towel, but also as wall décor, gift wrapping, or in-store display. Featuring the friendly Onigiri-san motif, it is a versatile item suitable for everyday use and gifting.
