Tactile tools for spatial thinking — designed in Sweden by architects, for anyone who plans a space by hand.

Planora turns floor planning into something you can touch. Scaled pieces you arrange by hand let you shift a wall, test a layout and see a room take shape at the table — no screen, no guesswork.

This is the second edition of our Metric range. The planning kits are now fully magnetic: every piece holds where you place it, so a layout stays put while you think, tilt the board, or step back to look. The sketchpads and planning pens are made to work alongside — draw a plan by hand, then place pieces straight on top.

THE IDEA

Some decisions are better made by hand.

A room is easier to understand when you can touch it. Move a wall, shift a table, feel how the space wants to work — slowly, at the table, with your hands. No screen between you and the idea. No undo button. Just the quiet clarity that comes from planning something real.

It's something to share, too — with family, or with a client. Made to plan with, and made to give.

Make design decisions together, at the table.
