DEVELOPMENT PROCESS

Themics can take full control over the design and production process, which differs per project on the clients demand. The development can range from concept design to production to on-site installation. Themics is able to guide the client from concept drawings, to detail design, which will be translated into Shop drawings, ready for production. Once the design and shop drawings are approved, Themics moves forward to production phase, starting with the sculpting. After the artists sculpture has been adjusted to the client's wishes, and approved, a rubber mold will be created. Upon the clients demands, Themics can also create a fiberglass mold, direct cast or reverse mold so the client has more options to choose from.

DEVELOPMENT PROCESS

Once the Rubber mold is ready, Themics starts with a process called casting, where fiberglass is laminated in the mold and pulled out once it's dried. After the first pull-out, more pieces can be pulled-out, lowering the cost significantly for multiple pieces per mold. After that seams are filled and the products go into detailing stage improving their appearance, and paint and topcoat finish is applied, till the details are 100% to the client wishes.

Once it is ready in the production, items will be logically cut into different knock-down parts so it fits in a container. After shipment, items are assembled and installed on-site (worldwide), where Themics reassures the final quality.
