	Congestion Charge	Ultra Low Emission Zone	Red Routes	Parking in London	Parking fines	Yellow Box Junctions	Speed Limits	Bus Lanes	Dartford Crossing
What is it?	A charge introduced to help reduce congestion in London during peak times.	To help improve the air quality in London, vehicles that produce high emissions will incur a charge to discourage driving in London	To help ease congestion on the major routes around London, 'Red routes,' marked with either single or double red lines indicate that vehicles are prohibited from stopping to park, load/unload or to allow passengers to board or alight.	Q-Park and NCP both operate car parks around London. It is best to book your space in advance to guarantee a space furthermore, it is important to check the height restrictions and whether they accept trailers. In London streets, parking restrictions typically apply between 08.30 and 18.30 Monday to Saturday. Always check the signs for exact details of parking restrictions and payment methods.	If your vehicle is parked in contravention of parking or traffic restrictions, you will be issued with a Penalty Charge Notice (PCN). And in some areas, your vehicle may be clamped. These parking fines and penalties are administered by the London borough in which the offence occurs.	Yellow box junctions keep the junction clear for through-traffic, in order to avoid traffic jams. Yellow box junctions are indicated by criss-cross yellow lines painted on the road. They are usually found at the junction of two or more roads and occasionally at roundabouts or outside fire and ambulance stations. A yellow box junction may not have any additional signage. You may enter a yellow box junction when your exit is clear and there is enough space on the other side of the junction for your vehicle to clear the box completely without stopping. The only time you can stop in a yellow box junction is when turning right, if you are prevented from turning by oncoming traffic, or by other vehicles waiting to turn right.	A speed limit of 20mph has been imposed on all central London roads managed by Transport for London (TfL) in a bid to reduce road deaths.	Bus lanes aren't always just for buses. Taxis, motorcyclists and cyclists can use many of them too. Anyone can use a bus lane outside the hours of operation but, be aware, some bus lanes are operational 24/7. It is important to check the sign to see whether you are able to use the bus lane at any given time.	The Dartford Crossing on the M25 Motorway east of London consists of two tunnels (carrying northbound traffic) and the Queen Elizabeth II Bridge (carrying southbound traffic).
