

TENDER ROUTE GUIDE

Tender vehicles are an essential part of a veteran car driver's resources during the 60-mile run to Brighton as these magnificent old cars often require a helping hand along the way. Whilst we understand the need for the tender vehicle to be close to the veteran car, tender vehicles are not permitted to travel along the veteran car route from London to Brighton. It is important that this instruction is followed to minimise congestion for the veteran cars on their journey to Brighton. It is impossible for a veteran car to overtake a slower moving veteran car if it has other tender vehicles in convoy to contend with.

The RAC Motoring Services offer breakdown and recovery support along the 60-mile route, limiting the need for the tender vehicle to join the route. However, if the veteran car you are supporting breaks down and is beyond repair or requires specialist expertise then the tender vehicle is permitted to collect or fix the car, but only in these circumstances.
