

GOVINSIDER

Joining Forces on Digital Innovation

GovWare, the pre-eminent global platform for government and critical infrastructure cybersecurity, has teamed up with GovInsider, the world's leading digital platform for public servants, to create innovative offerings that support Asia's cybersecurity community, including cutting-edge methods for senior cybersecurity officials to connect, learn, and share with private sector innovators.

Described as “basically the biggest government influencer you’ve never heard of” by Forbes Magazine, GovInsider is a Singapore-based publication that has facilitated showcases of public sector innovations, as well as MOUs between governments. GovInsider has also recently launched a new live digital event series that has featured high-level officials including the Under-Secretary-General of the United Nations.

The partnership has been in the works since GovWare 2019 and is especially timely given the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic and the impact it has had on business and communications globally.

If you are looking for effective channels to share your ideas, solutions, and innovations with a strong cybersecurity community from both the public and private sectors, get in touch with us to find out more on how we can help you achieve your goals.

“We have been privileged to work alongside the key stakeholders in security and cyber technology through the years, earning recognition as the key nexus for these fields. Our roots are deeply entwined with that of the community, working together in close collaboration in technology updates, content development, and communications outreach. This has yielded a close connection that binds all of us together with a trust that has stood the test of time. We are not only organisers of cyber events, but we are also a part of the community. We are pleased to have a partner in GovInsider who shares our deep commitment to the community of industry and users, and with the benefit of a strong domain knowledge in the digital area. The partnership with GovInsider is a natural part of our journey to strengthen GovWare’s offerings, so that we can better serve this community and take this community partnership into new and exciting realms in digital and beyond.”
