The International Critical Communications Awards (ICCAs), presented by TCCA, are the most prestigious awards in critical communications. Celebrating excellence in the sector, the highly anticipated annual programme recognises the success of products, organisations and individuals that have pushed boundaries and capabilities within the field.

The awards are open to any organisation or individual with a compelling story to tell that has a positive impact on the critical communications world.

Winners will be announced at ICCA Awards, Tuesday 17 June 2025 at the Marriott Hotel Grand Place, Brussels

ICCAs Entry Process:

Submissions and entries will be via the web portal found at: www.critical-communications-world.com/iccas

You may enter as many categories as you wish, but you can only enter up to two submissions per category. Please choose the most appropriate category for your entries.

Please note – repeat entries from previous years will not be considered by the judges.

What the judges look for:

Each category has a number of criteria and questions for entrants. It is important to clearly answer the questions. It is key that the case studies are evidence based and factually correct. Attachments must be included to support your entry. Where categories require demonstrable evidence of benefits, please ensure that these are clearly laid out either in words or graphical form.

In the product categories, judges will specifically look for entries that provide real end user benefits, new capabilities/functionality. The judges will expect to see evidence of this.

In some categories, responses to questions have a word count limit. Please ensure your responses are clear and concise and abide by this word limit.

The Judging Process:

The International Critical Communications Awards judging process follows a clear policy to determine the shortlist and winners. Judging decisions are made following a rigorous process, in line with the judging principles and guidance outlined below.

If a conflict of interest is perceived, a judge will not be permitted to judge in the affected category.

The rigorous nature of the Awards judging process is key to maintaining its excellent reputation around the world.

The process for judging is as follows:

- 1. All submissions must be made in electronic form via the portal (www.critical-communications-world.com/iccas).
- 2. Following the closing date, entries are allocated to a number of judges from the panel who will independently and in isolation from one another without conferring score each category. Judges may be asked to score multiple categories.
- 3. Over a set period of time defined as the 'scoring period', judges will score each entry with one of the following scores 0,3,5,8,10.
 - a. A score of 0 will be allocated for non-compliant entries.
 - b. A score of 3 is for those that nearly met the criteria but not quite.
 - c. A score of 5 is given to those entries that did meet the criteria.
 - d. A score of 8 is for an entry that demonstrates additional value.
 - e. A score of 10 allocated for those entries considered to be outstanding.
- 4. At the end of the scoring period the scores from each judge will be sent to the ICCA admin team.
- 5. All scores will be added up by a member of the ICCAs admin team.

The Judging Process (continued):

- 6. The top 60-70% (depending on the number of entries submitted) scoring entries will be shortlisted. The shortlists will be published within 10 working days of the scoring period closing, and those shortlisted promoted by the ICCA admin team
- 7. Following the shortlisting, scoring is reviewed to determine the winner and any highly commended entries. These will be announced at the ICCAs event at Brussels Marriott Hotel Grand Place on Tuesday 17 June 2025.

Submission Rules and Guidance:

- 1. You may enter as many categories as you wish, but you can only enter up to two submissions per category
- 2. When preparing your submission, please review the category criteria carefully and ensure that your entry contains sufficient robust and relevant information, meets the criteria and answers the questions clearly.
- 3. All submissions will be reviewed prior to judging commencing to ensure that a) they fit the correct category b) technically they are true and accurate. Entries deemed by the judges to not meet these requirements will be rejected.
- 4. The judges will be looking for a good story, well told, and backed up with solid metrics and real world evidence.

- 6. Do utilise the potential to add attachments to support your submission, entries with no attachment supporting the entry are very unlikely to score well and may be rejected by the judges.
- 7. Where you are representing another organisation or end user or submitting an entry on a project you have previously worked on as an individual, do include a letter of support. Entries that mention other organisations without permission will be rejected where support is not proven.
- 8. If you have previously entered the ICCAs and won a category, do not re-enter the same category with the same submission and product. Your submission will be rejected.
- 9. Adhere to any stated word count. Supporting pictures and video links (no longer than four minutes) may be attached. Submit graphics, tables, URLs etc with supporting materials, not as part of the submission text.
