

ANNIVERSARY PRESS RELEASE

Title: Millboard celebrates one-year anniversary of the London Design Hub

Millboard is in celebration mode! The premium decking manufacturer opened the doors to their Design Hub on Goswell Road during last year's Design Week, and has enjoyed a successful twelve months in the centre of the UK's architectural world.

The Millboard London Design Hub displays the company's leading-edge range of hand-moulded decking and also hosts CPD training sessions, architect-focused events and design presentations. Now established as centre for landscaping inspiration, the facility continues to stimulate visitors with innovative ideas on how to 'Live Life Outside' – the company's motto.

The design-led decking company chose to locate the Hub in Clerkenwell on the basis of the area's rich design heritage. Clerkenwell's elegant and quirky streets are home to numerous studios of world class designers, and the area famously boasts more architects per square metre than anywhere else on the planet. Joining this creative community was a natural next-step for the artisan British manufacturer.

Since 2007, Millboard have approached decking as a blank canvas, sidestepping traditional wood or composite board production. The company's mineral-resin boards are moulded from authentic timber masters and hand-finished in the true-to-life, tonal shades that are now the signature feature of the brand. Since the original product first launched, the company's innovation has driven rapid expansion and earned widespread industry recognition, with Millboard decking now installed in homes, businesses and public installations all across Europe and the Asia-Pacific region.

Millboard's Global Sales Director, Guy Douglass writes that "the Design Hub and its visitors provides us with a constant source of inspiration and keeps us closer to the beating heart of British style leadership. We are thrilled to be celebrating one year as part of the Clerkenwell community and have enormous plans for the next twelve months."

Millboard will be marking the anniversary with a programme of special events to take place over the course of the Clerkenwell Design Week - details to be released shortly.

You can find the Millboard London Design Hub at 63 Goswell Rd, EC1V 7EN.
