

Elica to bring show trailer and brand-new appliances to the heart of Clerkenwell Design Week

Elica, the marketing-leading Italian designer of cooker hoods and extractor hobs, will be bringing its show trailer and a number of brand-new appliances across Europe to Brewhouse Yard in the heart of the action at this year's Clerkenwell Design Week.

The show trailer will be the first opportunity for UK designers, kitchen studios and interior designers to see LHOV, a brand-new product that integrates hob, hood and a revolutionary extractor oven in a single appliance. The design of LHOV will complement and enhance modern kitchen design, whilst providing extraction that removes vapours and odours not only from the hob but from the oven as well. The extraction system has been discreetly hidden, while the oven is positioned under the hob at the perfect height for ergonomic use.

Among other highlights will be:

- NikolaTesla Unplugged the latest extractor hob which brings together the elegance of the hugely successful NikolaTesla Switch and the benefits of analogue control. NikolaTesla Unplugged is controlled through fixed click-release knobs with analogue touch and feel which provide instantaneous and intuitive access to all its features. All elements are incorporated into a bold-lined appearance, developed to intelligently separate the cooking zone from the control area.
- The new range of VIRTUS ovens and RATIO hobs which fuse high performance and Elica's uniquely elegant design language
- Veritas - Elica's brand new built-in wine coolers.

The Elica show trailer will also display many more of the iconic NikolaTesla extractor hobs and of course a selection from Elica's huge range of discrete ceiling, ultra slim wall-mounted and minimalist built-in cooker hoods able to satisfy the requirements of every plan and style of home.
