

Spacestor Welcomes You to Discover Infinite Possibilities at CDW24

LONDON, 30/04/2024 - Today's workplace is an important physical manifestation of an organisation's brand and it has expanded its role to become a meaningful message to clients, employees and the wider community of a company's vision and culture. Always seeking to push the workplace boundaries with solutions that inspire awe, stimulate intrigue and solve the biggest pain points facing teams across the globe, this year's Clerkenwell Design Week, Spacestor invites you to explore Infinite Possibilities!

1. New Product Launches

Spacestor's commitment to innovation is evident in their recently expanded Portals family. Designed to seamlessly integrate into any workplace, all of their Portals pods are specially design to work seamlessly together, furnishing the workplace with a range of user workstations for any type of work. Whether it's focused, collaborative, or for video calls, the Portals family provides employees with the space they need to be productive and successful. Stay tuned for another exciting Portals member – launching at Clerkenwell Design Week, alongside another brand-new product, being unveiled on 21st May.

2. Huge Customization & Hidden in Plain Sight:

Spacestor understands that no two companies are alike. That's why Spacestor's products are highly customizable, both internally and externally. From finishes to materials, each element can be adapted to any design scheme. But what truly sets Spacestor apart is their commitment to blending in. With products that don't scream 'furniture'; but are instead designed seamlessly to become an extension of the brand, enhancing the overall workspace, whilst staying modular to ensure future flexibility. In a game of "Spot the Spacestor Product", each piece becomes a quality, flexible and aesthetically beautiful cog into the design machine.

3. Market Intel: Insights from the Frontline

Spacestor's long-term engagement with successful and creative clients has given them a unique perspective. They're not just furniture manufacturers; they're consultants and workplace experts. Their extensive market knowledge as well as constant interaction in the field with global companies allows for the anticipation of trends and an understanding of the challenges faced by corporates. During Clerkenwell Design Week, Spacestor will host two episodes of their Insights Live series, in-person at their London Design Centre, where you can learn from corporate real estate professionals and designers as they share their experiences and knowledge.

4. Spacestor's Clerkenwell Design Week Program

Spacestor is excited to be presenting a showroom revamp, with new products introduced, reconfigurations of existing products and a new layout! Experience the latest from Spacestor as they present 'Infinite Possibilities', a guarantee from them to you, of inspiration, immersion and solution driven furniture specially designed to your needs.

Tuesday 21st – The first day of CDW brings two product launches, which can be experienced at Spacestor's London Design Centre! With a morning product unveiling, Insights Live Session, and a product launch party in the evening, Tuesday promises to be an action-packed day with immersive experiences to be enjoyed and interesting insights to gather!

Wednesday 22nd – Throughout the day Spacestor will host a colour workshop with sessions available to book, where you can discover the best approach to colouring your wardrobe. Wednesday also brings opportunities to tour the newest products, absorb new perspectives and enjoy evening drinks and refreshments.

Thursday 23rd – Featuring exclusive tours, drinks and refreshments, and big networking opportunities. Thursday is the last chance to enjoy and absorb the lively atmosphere and creativity of the design industry's week to shine!

Clerkenwell Design Week takes place from 21st-23rd May 2024 in Clerkenwell, London. Register your interest to visit Spacestor's London Design Centre here and stay tuned for more of what's in store soon!