Frem Group Unveils New Product Innovations at Clerkenwell Design Week 2026

London, UK – April 2026 — Frem Group is set to showcase an exciting lineup of new product designs at this year’s Clerkenwell Design Week (CDW), taking place from 19–21 May in London. Visitors can expect a dynamic presentation of sustainable design, enhanced acoustic solutions, and versatile workplace furniture collections.

At the heart of Frem’s CDW offering for 2026 is KOALA, a new modular seating range designed with flexibility and sustainability in mind. Designed and built at their UK manufacturing sites using ‘Koala’ eucalyptus plywood, Koala is an FSC-certified product that reflects Frem’s commitment to responsible manufacturing. The range has been thoughtfully developed for modern office, education, and library environments, offering adaptable configurations that support collaborative and individual spaces alike.

To celebrate the launch, Frem invites visitors to take part in a “Koala Hunt”, hosted at their showroom on Tuesday and Wednesday from 2–3pm, complete with cocktails.

Frem will also introduce its expanded table collection, featuring a variety of new leg styles to suit diverse interior schemes. Among the highlights is the return of a standout design first previewed at the Workspace Design Show in February: a table featuring the distinctive Bow base paired with an Alpi veneer top in a striking pink and blue finish. This piece will be displayed alongside several new additions to the growing Frem table portfolio.

In acoustic pod innovation, Frem will present the Evolve Studio Pod, an upgraded version of its popular acoustic pod range. The new design delivers improved decibel performance and enhanced acoustic comfort, responding to the increasing demand for effective sound management in shared environments.

Also on show will be new products from their Caimi Acoustics and Kastel Seating collections, displaying a curated selection of new products available exclusively through Frem in the UK. Together, the collaboration highlights a comprehensive approach to workplace design—combining furniture, acoustics, and seating solutions on the finest quality.

Visitors are encouraged to explore Frem’s latest collections and experience the new designs firsthand throughout the three-day event.
