AUTHENTIC VINTAGE & ANTIQUE STYLE IRONMONGERY

A Warm Welcome to Adfix Trade

IRONWORK AS IT USED TO BE

Adfix Ironmongery was born out of a desire to create authentic vintage industrial and antique style ironmongery.

What sets our range apart from other brands of ironmongery is its authenticity. All of our products have unique designs and living finishes.

Most of the ironmongery today is mass produced die cast, and often finished in black epoxy, lacquer or some other artificial coating.

Because our range is handfinished using traditional methods, you won't end up with identical looking products, you get an authentic vintage or antique look that ages naturally.

All of our cast iron products go through a five stage hand finishing process to help products age naturally over time and retain their authentic charm.

You'll find our items originate from genuine castings or carefully copied from original designs, so every item tells a story.

This is a range unique to Adfix Trade, using traditional hand forging and sand casting methods.

We are passionate about creating and designing new products so you can create beautiful products and looks for your valued customers.

The hope is that this catalogue provides inspiration for the projects you're working on. We also invite you to visit our website, www.adfixtrade.co.uk where the latest products and developments are listed.

And of course, our team are very happy to help in any way we can, just pick up the phone and call us on 01482 222 100. We love helping you find solutions to your challenges.

Guide prices are in brackets and coded with a prefix letter. We reserve the right to adjust these without prior notice.

Best wishes from the Adfix Team

A Guide to Finishes

List of our most popular finishes

- Antique Iron (AI)
- Antique Brass (AB)
- Antique Copper (AC)
- Black Beeswax (BLB)
- Chrome Plate (CHP)
- Brass Plate (PBP)
- Copper Plate (CP)
- Polished Brass (PB)
- Florentine Bronze (FB)
- Satin Black (SEB)

IMPORTANT

Please note that only non-ferrous metals such as solid brass are suitable for exterior use. All ferrous items such as cast iron must be coated with an exterior finish such as Hammerite. Most externally fitted ironwork is colour-coded to suite the surrounding decor.

Frequently Asked Questions

Question: Is it possible to have an item specially produced?

Answer: Yes, however, some items may require a sample or pattern to copy from depending on the complexity of the item. It is not feasible to produce a 'one-off' item as the development and patternmaking costs are high.

Question: How much does it cost to have an item specially produced?

Answer: It depends on the tooling cost and whether the item is made exclusively for you. EG: the patternmaking and mould costs for a wall mounted bottle opener costs approximately £140. However, if you are happy for us to include the item in our range, then we often absorb the development costs.

Question: Is cast antique iron suitable for using outside.

Answer: It depends on the item and the environment. Some of our products (such as table legs and cast iron brackets) age naturally outside and the surface rust darkens over time. Maintenance oil can be used if preferred. If you wish to preserve the antique iron look, we recommend using a proprietary exterior metal lacquer after preparing the surface first. Many paint our cast iron items with an exterior coating to suit the surrounding decor.

Question: Do your products such as brackets and hooks carry a load rating?

Answer: No, this is because although cast iron is very strong and very rarely gives way under load, the installation strength is dependant on how the product is fixed and also in conjunction with the quality and size of the fixings used.

Question: What is the best method of treating rusty or oily surfaces.

Answer: One of the best and simplest methods is to wipe the surface down with a cotton cloth then apply dark trade wax with steel wool. (BriWax polishes to a lovely sheen).

Question: How should I maintain the antique iron patina?

Answer: Simply wipe over with a waxy or oily cloth on an occasional basis or as necessary.
