What the schools say:

"There are some interesting ideas floating around and I take the long view as far as the sector is concerned which has been very resilient since its creation. In the post Arnoldian public school, scarlet fever, various other ghastly diseases ('Wellington Throat'), financial crises caused by falling numbers and incompetent Heads, staffing and trauma in the First War, financial collapse in the 'thirties, relocations (and staffing again) in the Second War, post war austerity, hostile governments, roaring inflation in the seventies and regular economic crises have presented storms that have all been weathered! The Show(s) must go on!"

Dr Niall Hamilton, Marlborough College Admissions

What the parents say:

"We heard about the Schools Show so we visited for the day, where we spoke with schools we knew of as well as those we didn't. Thanks to the experience we are now much clearer and feel more confident in making this huge emotional and financial decision."

What we say:

"As a parent I appreciate the gravity of decisions contributing to school selection, the Show presents parents like me with the opportunity to discover how the different schools work, where their child can flourish and to learn about financial options such as bursaries. For schools it is business but not as we know it, and parents should be encouraged to attend our free events to consider all options."
