From those small beginnings in Cleckheaton, West Yorkshire, we have evolved to become one of Britain's largest suppliers of clothing to the Emergency Services sector incorporating the Police, Fire Service, Ambulance, Prison Service and major Security firms.

Having started with just one sewing machine, we soon acquired our own weaving mills and during the course of the first and second world wars we produced close to six million shirts and work suits for the armed forces. We now source from the World's best suppliers to ensure we provide the highest standards of uniform at all times.

We brought poly-cotton to the UK and more than doubled the life of cotton uniform clothing. Embracing the latest technology and leading the way with innovation, we developed our industry's first bespoke IT System. We were the first company in the UK to use CAD systems to design our fabrics and were the first to offer a complete managed uniform service assisted by a full stock management system.

Listening to our customer's needs, we have developed a full service, from design to delivery. Whether it's clothing from our stock, an embroidery service or a fully bespoke uniform design, we can clothe each member of your team from head to toe.

Our streamlined approach removes much of the unwanted pressure when it comes to providing staff with workwear. That's why some of Britain's best known businesses rely on Sugdens to deliver excellent products and stress free distribution.

The expertise we've acquired in clothing Emergency Services around the country ensures you get the right clothing for the job. Our garments are fully tested to ensure they meet all safety regulations and the specific demands required.

With an enviable reputation as a leading supplier of uniforms, we are proud to clothe a large number of local and national emergency services.

BESPOKE DESIGN CASE STUDY

St John Ambulance (Supplies) is a company established to control all 'supplies' to St John Ambulance. Our objective was to create a more modern look, which would reinvigorate the St John Ambulance brand and enhance the perception of the organisation and ultimately provide a high profile branded uniform, fit for the nation's leading first aid charity.

The traditional black and white uniform had become somewhat dated and it often led to confusion between St John Ambulance Volunteers and the Police Force. This was becoming problematic in what could be potentially hostile environments. In addition, Volunteers carried a utility belt that further blurred the lines between the Police force and themselves.

Our designers firstly looked at the use of colour to take a positive step away from the previous uniform. Green was used as the highlight colour. Recognised as the international colour of care, the colour instantly gave a nod towards an 'Ambulance' service.

We broke away from the traditional, old fashioned, black and white image and introduced a layered wardrobe of green and black uniform. Updated styling modernised the look, and with new garment technologies available, the utility belt that was a feature of the old uniform was no longer needed.

The resulting uniform plays an important role in maximising brand identity with the use of a new, modern St John Ambulance logo on every garment and a strong representation of the clear, distinctive colours of black, green and white.

St John Ambulance Volunteers cover a vast spectrum of ages, shapes and sizes so designing a uniform that was appropriate to all was key.

The contract offers a fully managed service. This enables users around the country to login to a secure web portal to view and order the full St John uniform range. This is then distributed directly from our warehouse saving St John Ambulance Supplies the cost of storing garments and managing this service themselves.
