

Who we are

Communities Prepared is a countrywide community resilience programme funded by The National Lottery alongside a range of other funders. We help communities in England to prepare for, respond to, and recover from a range of emergencies which they may face.

As a programme run by the charity Groundwork we want every community to be strong and able to shape its own destiny in an increasingly risk-filled future.

Our offer is free to community volunteers, and we are regularly developing new collaborative projects with our partners so we are able to work closer, and more in-depth, with those most impacted by emergencies.

What we do

- Specific training across a range of emergencies
- Training for coordinators to help you build, sustain, and lead a group of volunteers
- Workshops and resources to help at all stages from awareness raising, through planning, to recovery
- Resources and sessions on specifics such as insurance, GDPR, and fundraising
- Open discussion spaces to meet and share with other communities
- Specialised support from our team
- Working with authorities and agencies, alongside communities, to build closer, constructive relationships
