

Harper Chalice becomes Hirsch in the UK

Perimeter Intrusion Detection manufacturer Harper Chalice announces it is changing its name to Hirsch.

Coventry, UK, April 2025.

One of the UK's leading Perimeter Intrusion Detection manufacturers, Harper Chalice, announces it is aligning itself under fellow Vitaprotech company Hirsch's name for its UK and Export operations.

In the UK, the Hirsch product range of high-security Physical Access Control, CCTV and VMS solutions will be available alongside the lineup of National Protective Security Authority approved perimeter intrusion detection solutions currently offered by Harper Chalice, along with the addition of Hirsch's UK-based EMEA Sales and Support Team to the operational team based in Coventry.

"The Harper Chalice name has a long and well-respected history within the perimeter intrusion market here in the UK and since our acquisition by Vitaprotech back in 2023 we have taken huge strides to develop the business both here in the UK and overseas", said Adam O'Reilly, Managing Director of Hirsch in the UK.

"This name change signifies much more than just a rebrand - it marks the beginning of an exciting new chapter in which we can continue our development and offer a more comprehensive and innovative range of high-security solutions to our customers. By combining expertise, we are reinforcing our shared commitment to excellence in the high-security market on both sides of the Atlantic"

The transition will deliver significant benefits to customers in both regions, providing an integrated suite of security solutions tailored to the most demanding environments which builds upon both companies' prestigious place as security providers to some of the most secure locations in both the USA and the UK.

Thibaut Galland, UK COO for Vitaprotech commented, "This evolution underscores our dedication to providing a complete portfolio of world-class high-security solutions in the UK. We believe that this change will put us in a stronger position for the future, leveraging our combined strengths to deliver even greater value to our clients."

Current Harper Chalice customers can expect the same level of support, reliability and commitment to delivering the highest standards of security and innovation under the new Hirsch name, without any change to existing services. By offering a comprehensive product portfolio and leveraging advanced technologies, it will continue to provide reliable, future-proof solutions for high-security sites.

As the company moves forward under its new identity, its dedication to protecting critical assets and ensuring the safety of its clients remains unwavering. This next chapter marks the beginning of an exciting journey, reinforcing its position as a trusted leader in perimeter security.

For more information about Hirsch UK, please visit www.hirschsecure.co.uk, call +44 (0)24 7642 1300 or email sales@hirschsecure.co.uk

About Hirsch

Founded in 1981, Hirsch has established itself as the leading high-security access control solution for some of the world's most demanding customers, and it already has numerous high-security sites around the UK and across Europe. In the US, it secures multiple U.S. federal government agencies and departments. Hirsch has become synonymous with government-grade security, and true to its technology roots, has played a key role in shaping high-security standards for the U.S. government.

About Harper Chalice

Harper Chalice has been a trusted name in perimeter intrusion detection for over two decades, delivering high-security solutions to protect critical infrastructure, commercial properties, and high-risk sites across the UK. Founded with a commitment to innovation and reliability, the company has developed a reputation for cutting-edge perimeter security systems, including microphonic fence detection (PIDS), Electric Fences, secure hatch protection and other detection solutions.