Highway Safety Markings and Chapter 8

Our proven expertise and experience in supplying the emergency services market provides assurances to clients in the highways sector.

Research has shown that increased rear visibility of vehicles operating on the highways significantly improves the safety of vehicle occupants. As a result the Department for Transport (DFT) issued "Chapter 8" of the Traffic Signs Manual; recommending vehicles have suitable chevron safety markings for maximising daytime (fluorescent) and night-time (reflective) visibility.

Our expertise and service is used by Term Maintenance Contractors, Utility companies and Hire companies – we even supply many other sign companies.

See www.vehiclechevrons.com for our full Chapter 8 guide and our online shop.

Increased rear visibility saves lives!

Reflective specialists- worldwide

As well as supplying the UK's blue light emergency services with reflective livery and helping highway workers comply with legislation, other high profile organisations around the world rely on PVL's expertise to help them stand out from the crowd and remain safe.

In the UK, these organisations include the Highways Agency, traffic officers, recovery firms, wide-load escort companies, search and rescue and HM Coastguard.

We supply and support emergency services around the world, including over 500 vehicles to date in the Middle East and the National Ambulance Fleet in the UAE from our branch in Abu Dhabi.

Stand out from the crowd with PVL

Our award-winning commercial graphics service starts from initial design concept to production, application and ongoing support. Wrapping is a highly effective means of branding a vehicle or fleet and a highly visible form of differentiation from your competition, helping to build your brand in the marketplace.

PVL offer partial and full wrap services in single colour or full digital print using the latest eco-friendly printers and wrapping vinyls.

We assist throughout the process to ensure your brand is translated effectively onto a fleet and pride ourselves on our project management, with experience working with large national fleets and rollouts.
