TEAMS Educational Session: Pay Dirt: How Gravel Racing Has Changed the View of Dirt Roads

11:30 a.m. – 12:30 p.m. | OKCCC 301 CD

You may not consider gravel roads an asset when it comes to sports events, but some of the biggest events in cycling are happening on those roads in some of the most remote destinations. In this session, learn how several small- and mid-sized destinations have built enormous followings and attracted record numbers of visitors in the form of cyclists who crave the experience of riding on gravel. Hear how these events are organized, how they've grown and how your community can take advantage of one of its most underappreciated assets.

TEAMS/SportsLink/NGB Best Practices Opening General Session: Title IX at 50 — The Push Toward Equality

2:30 p.m. – 3:30 p.m. | OKCCC Ballroom

Jason Gewirtz, vice president of the Northstar Meetings Group Sports Division, Zac Craig, president of the Oklahoma City CVB, and Rocky Harris, chief of sport and athlete services for the USOPC, will welcome everyone to the opening session of TEAMS, SportsLink and the NGB Best Practices Seminar.

The Opening Session will examine what may be the most consequential piece of sports legislation ever to the Olympic and Paralympic movement and the sports landscape. From its signing in 1972, Title IX has become the backbone for which women's sports have climbed from decades of inequity and ignorance to the spot they have today. Particularly for the U.S. Olympic and Paralympic movement, the past decade has seen the biggest names and biggest accomplishments come from the women's teams. In this session, we discuss the leaps that women's sports have made in the past 50 years but also what remains to be done in the future for true equality to be achieved.

8:15 a.m. – 9:00 a.m. | OKCCC 301 CD

Volunteer help is the lifeline for any destination hosting a major event and for the event organizer bringing their event to a destination. Without volunteers, there may not be a sports event in the country that could go off without a hitch. But in some places around the country, what was a vast volunteer database has diminished since the pandemic. Learn how event organizers and destinations have adjusted and what incentives organizers and destinations can give to entice volunteers to come back again and again.

10:45 a.m. – 11:30 p.m. | OKCCC 301 AB

One way that cities can capitalize on hosting events is to host several at once. The concept of an Olympic and Paralympic sport series is one where NGBs can combine resources by hosting several of their championships in one location, adding overall prestige to the events and increasing community interest in a variety of sports. In this session, hear from NGB leaders interested in developing a series concept and how your community can partner with them on future events. Come with your own questions and ideas from a destination perspective to help drive the concept forward.

TEAMS '22 Closing General Session: The Evolving Landscape of Youth Sports

12:45 p.m. – 1:45 p.m. | OKCCC Ballroom

The Closing General Session will set the stage for next year's TEAMS. Attendees will receive a special invitation to TEAMS '23, October 2–5, 2023, in The Palm Beaches, Florida. The session will also include announcements regarding future TEAMS host cities.

Following those announcements, we will settle into a discussion on the state of youth sports. Youth sports are a bigger industry than any professional sports league in the country and are valuable for destinations of all sizes. With multisport venues continuing to be built around the country, the industry shows no signs of slowing. But challenges remain, from keeping children safe at events to getting them engaged in the first place. In this session, hear from leaders in the youth sports space on the industry's most pressing issues, opportunities for sports organizations and destinations to work together, and the future of youth sports across the landscape.
