TEAMS Educational Session: Major Event Funds — Different States, Different Approaches

10:45 a.m. – 11:30 a.m.

ACC North 200 General Session Room

Roughly half the states have some form of major event fund that destinations can use to help attract major events to their cities. For event organizers, knowing where you may have more support is crucial. But these programs look different in each state, and some states are having more success than others. In this session, hear about established, newly passed and proposed new funds in the works and come with your questions about how to mobilize your partner destinations or events to create new funds of their own.

TEAMS Educational Session: Beyond the Normal Fields of Play

11:30 a.m. – 12:15 p.m. | ACC North 200 General Session Room

It may sound odd to have sumo wrestling in a hockey arena, or a volleyball match in an outdoor football stadium. But the ability to activate sports venues for events other than their main purpose is one way to keep facilities activated throughout the year. And for event organizers and destinations, it's a chance to showcase an event's versatility and grow social media branding. In this session, hear from experts in event management on how they approach unique events in their venues and tips you can take away on how to make the most of your own potential creative use.

TEAMS/SportsLink/NGB Best Practices Opening General Session: The Golden Decade

2:30 p.m. – 3:30 p.m. | ACC North 200 General Session Room

Welcome to TEAMS '24! In this Opening Session that serves as a kickoff for TEAMS, the USOPC's SportsLink program and the NGB Best Practices Seminar, receive welcomes from Jason Gewirtz, vice president of the Northstar Meeting Group Sports Division, and Visit Anaheim President and CEO Mike Waterman as we get the conference off to an energetic start.

The Opening Session will also examine the incredible opportunities for the sports-events industry in the decade to come. Los Angeles is officially on the clock for the 2028 Olympic and Paralympic Summer Games. The event will mark the first time a U.S. city has hosted the Summer Games in three decades and a return to the destination that revolutionized the current Olympic marketing landscape. And Salt Lake City is officially a decade away from hosting its second Winter Games this century when the event arrives in 2034. As Los Angeles prepares for what's next, hear from those who experienced the historic 1984 Los Angeles Games about how they live on today, what's to come for the Games ahead, and how your organizations can be involved in the efforts in the years to come.

SportsLink/TEAMS Session 4: Women Leading the Way

12:05 p.m. – 12:45 p.m. | ACC North 200 General Session Room

There has never been a bigger spotlight on women's sports, which has been a huge driver for U.S. Olympic and Paralympic success for decades. At the professional level, leagues in basketball, soccer, volleyball and softball, among others, are flourishing. Team USA, which again saw a majority of women making up the team, is seeing a similar effect with athletes becoming household names even in years when the Games aren't held. In this session, we explore how the USOPC is supporting visibility for these athletes, how NGBs and their athletes are capitalizing on the interest in women's sports and how this moment is inspiring the next generation of Olympic and Paralympic supporters.

SportsLink sessions are open to all TEAMS attendees.

Afterward, settle in for a high-level discussion of how sports events are driving not only the travel industry, but the future of travel policy as well. With several mega sports events on the horizon for North America — including the World Cup and the Olympic and Paralympic Games — you'll hear from industry leaders on how these events are driving important travel policy discussions, how destinations should position themselves for the future when it comes to sports, what your destinations and events should think about in anticipation of the events to come, and how the rising profile of sports will allow you to advocate for the work you do for your communities, participants and clients.
