

Revolutionising software testing for the travel industry

For many travel businesses, in-house software testing can easily become a problem. As time is lost with inefficient testing processes, important software development can be delayed which in turn delays the release of new products and services to market. And that can slow down business and revenue growth.

Open Destinations' Testing Services offers a better way. We bring high quality and visibility to the process, delivering expert knowledge across all areas of software testing. And we can provide expertise and support to you on any requirements across any platform, not just our own.

Open Destinations Testing Services - a customisable, end-to-end solution

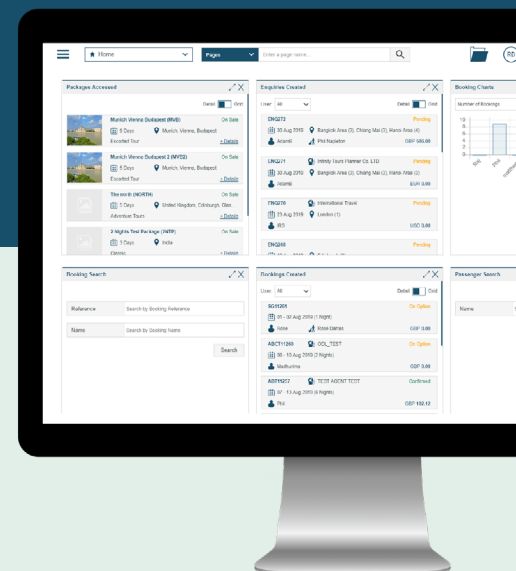

Whether it is ad-hoc additional testing resource or an end-to-end integrated quality assurance solution, we ensure quality and consistency so that you can focus on getting great products to your customers. Using our successful and proven methodologies as well as cutting-edge tools, our technology ensures that testing processes are futureproof.

Open Destinations case study: Abercrombie & Kent

“We selected Open Destinations Testing Services as our QA partner over 18 months ago and they have been a key extension to our internal QA team. We are able to flex up or down our team size at short notice with a short onboarding window. This approach has significantly reduced our time frame for delivering stable software to business users.”
