Peer-reviewed publication on BaPS on the integrity of the intestinal barrier

- American Journal: Advances in Bioengineering & Biomedical Science Research
- Bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt (BaPS) and its beneficial Effects on the Integrity of the Intestinal Barrier
- Link:

<https://opastpublishers.com/open-access/bioresonance-according-to-paul-schmidt-baps-and-its-beneficial-effects-onrnthe-integrity-of-the-intestinal-barrier-in-vitro.pdf>

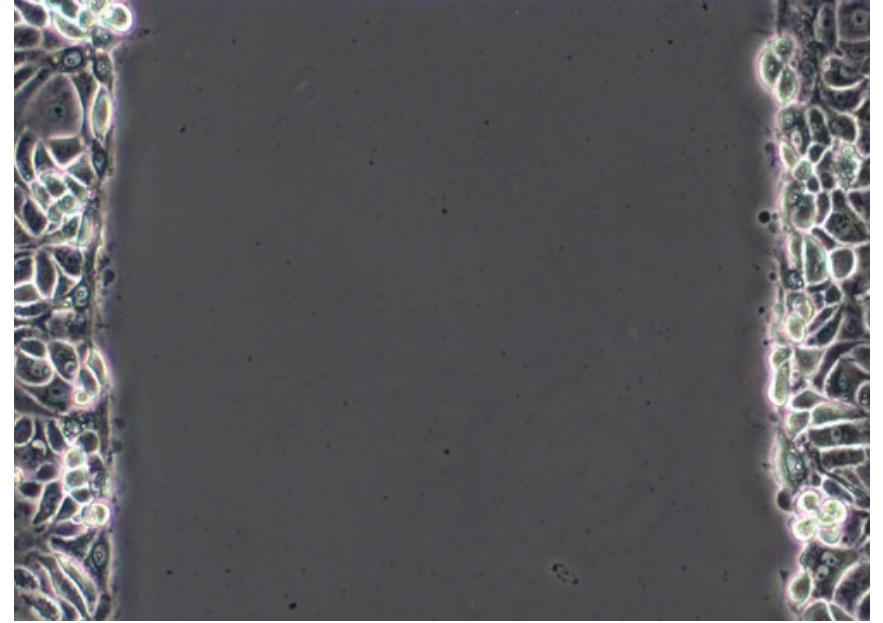

Verum versus Placebo - Results

- Intestinal barrier strengthened by more than 30% compared to the placebo device
- Intestinal barrier significantly more resistant after using the BaPS treatment compared to the placebo device
- Regeneration process after traumatisation or injury of the intestinal epithelial cells increased by 12% after using the BaPS treatment in direct comparison to the placebo device

Frequency-based medical scanning devices

- Ultrasound: Sound waves and processing of the echo
- X-ray: Radioactive radiation (frequencies) and its absorption
- CT: Radioactive radiation (frequencies) and its absorption for the production of tomograms
- MRI: High-frequency, super-strong magnetic fields for the energy enrichment of hydrogen nuclei and measurement of their energy release

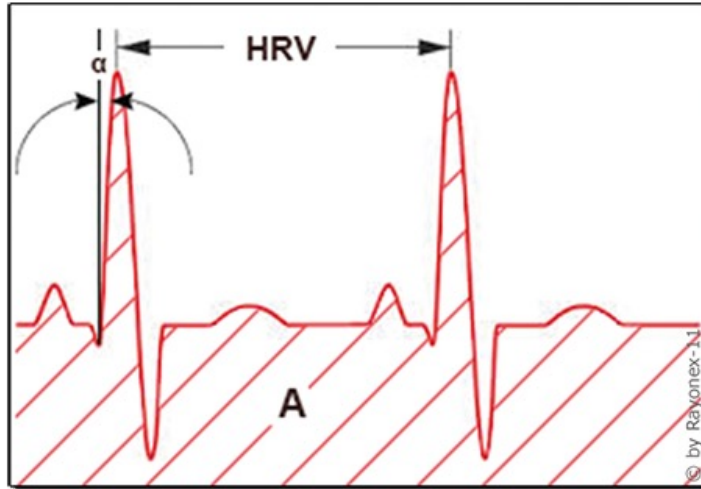

What is to be noted?

- The imaging methods presented, which are used in modern medicine today, have the aim of imaging tissue contrasts by means of frequency-based medical technology
- Most of these presented methods have unwanted side effects
- None of these presented methods offer a therapy recommendation!

The Concept of the Rayoscan[®] based on Heart Rate Variability

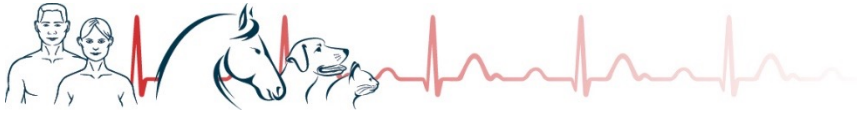

1. Setting of a stimulus (fundamental frequency value or frequency spectrum)
2. Measuring the values with high quality ECG hardware
3. Calculation of HRV, gradient and area
4. Calculation if the stimulus is helpful for the organism

Example of a Measurement

Differences in the ECG are invisible to the human eye, but they can be calculated very well.

Rayoscan[®] Sponsored by ZIM

(Centre for Innovation Programs)

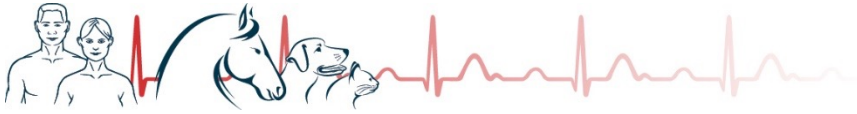

1. High mathematical complexity
2. Integration of university faculties
3. Financial sponsorship
4. Rayoscan[®] patent is pending

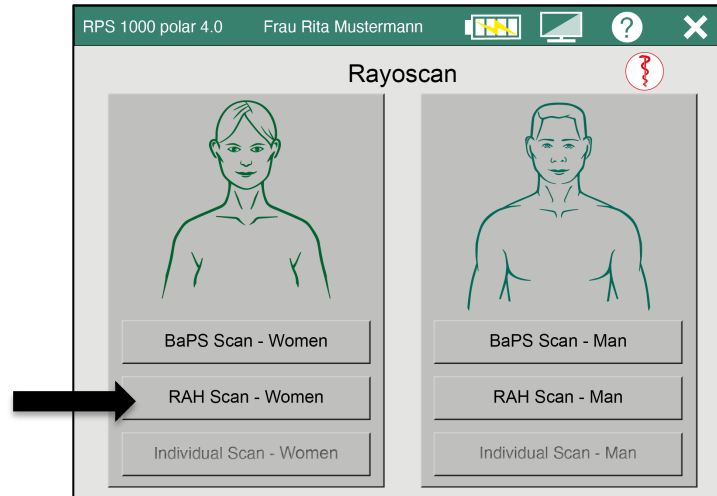

The Purpose of the Rayoscan[®]

1. Automatic calculation of a cause-oriented therapy proposal
2. Automatic calculation of a therapy program for energetic support
3. Progress control of the therapy

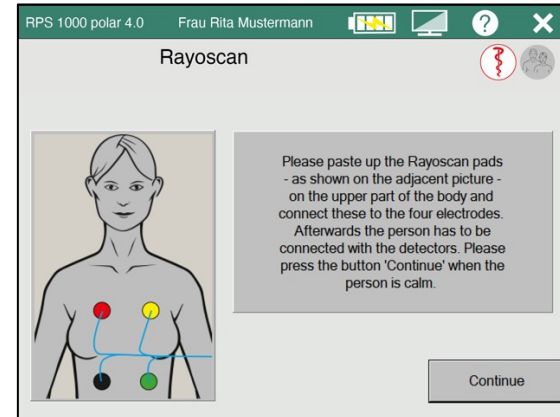

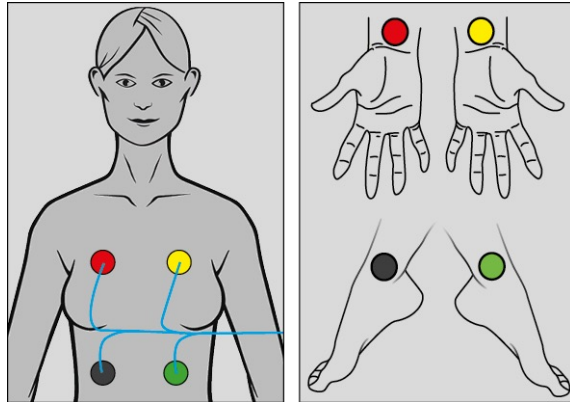

Male or Female

Positioning of the Rayoscan[®] Pads

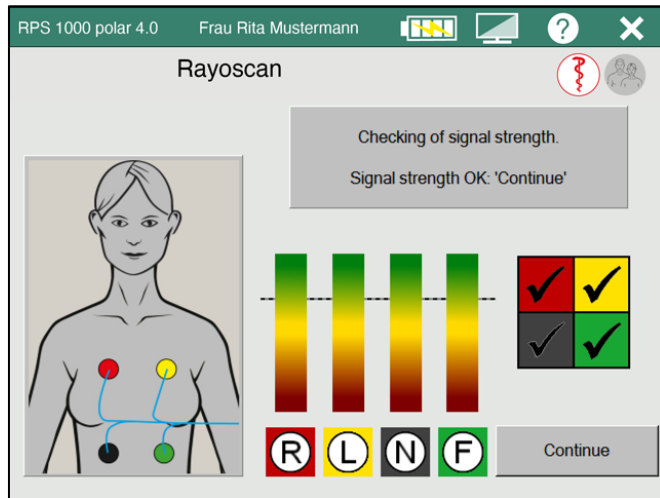

The clients are connected to the Rayocomp PS 1000 polar 4.0
via the Rayoscan[®] pads.

RAH Scan

Checking the signal strength

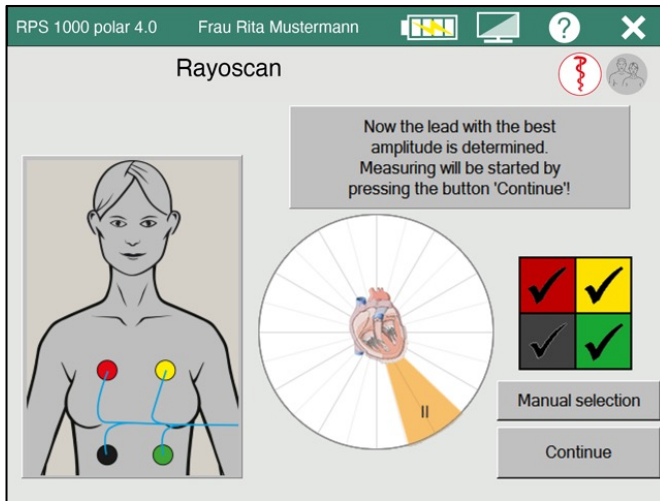

- Checking the signal strength
- Electrode gel amplifies the signal
- When all bars are above the dotted line, the process continues

RAH Scan

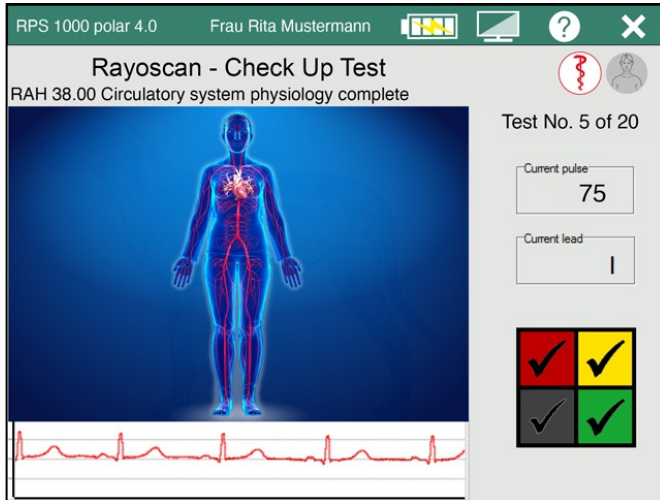

Automatic selection of the best lead

- Five leads are possible
- The system will select the best lead for the measurement automatically

RAH-Scan Check Up Test

- The frequency spectra of 22 physiologies are stimulated on the organism
- Duration approx. 2 minutes
- Visualisation changes with every physiology
- ECG graph, pulse and the lead are shown

Advantages of the Rayoscan[®]

1. Easy entrance into the world of Bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt by means of an automatic measuring system.
2. Easy to delegate, thus also feasible for established doctors.
3. No energetic influence of the client and the therapist.
4. ECG has a high level of acceptance in the medical world.
