Welcome Message

Dear Industry Colleagues,

On behalf of the Conference Committee, it is our pleasure to invite you to the SPE/ICoTA Asia Pacific Well Intervention and P&A Conference and Exhibition, taking place from 29 – 30 September 2026 in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

Well intervention is being reshaped by a shift toward rigless, data-driven, and low-impact technologies. Coiled tubing, wireline, and hydraulic workover units are increasingly preferred for their cost efficiency and minimal surface footprint. At the same time, real-time diagnostics, smart tools, and downhole automation are enhancing the precision and effectiveness of interventions, especially in aging or high-complexity wells. Digital platforms now support better planning and execution, reducing non-productive time and extending well life safely and economically.

Well plugging and abandonment (P&A) activity in Asia Pacific is also accelerating, with maturing regulatory frameworks. There is strong momentum behind collaborative abandonment campaigns, multi-operator project models, and supply chain integration to reduce cost and complexity across the region. At the same time, regional national operators and international operators are investing in workforce development to address the skills gap in late-life operations. As the Asia Pacific market evolves, collaboration, capability building, and innovation across the ecosystem are proving essential to ensure sustainable, scalable well intervention and abandonment practices.

This conference serves as a vital platform for industry professionals, bringing together operators, service providers, and key stakeholders to exchange ideas, share best practices, and address emerging challenges. This collaborative environment fosters innovative discussions and forward-thinking solutions, shaping the future of well intervention and abandonment.

We encourage your organisations to participate in showcasing thought leadership, cutting-edge solutions, and services at the conference. We look forward to welcoming you to the 2026 SPE/ICoTA Asia Pacific Well Intervention and P&A Conference and Exhibition in Kuala Lumpur!

Advancing Precision, Efficiency, and Sustainability in Well Intervention and P&A

As the energy industry evolves, well intervention is being reshaped by rigless, data-driven, and low-impact technologies that boost efficiency while minimising surface disruption. Coiled tubing, wireline, and hydraulic workovers are gaining traction, supported by real-time diagnostics and downhole automation to enhance performance in complex wells. At the same time, well plugging and abandonment (P&A) activity is accelerating across Asia Pacific, driven by maturing regulations and collaborative, cost-effective project models. This event brings together industry leaders to explore innovative approaches, digital solutions, and workforce strategies that support safe, scalable, and sustainable well intervention and abandonment across the entire lifecycle.

In the Asia Pacific region, rigless intervention—utilising coiled tubing, wireline & slickline has become the operational baseline for managing mature assets safely and cost-effectively. However, the true value of these low-impact operations is only unlocked when guided by precise intelligence. This executive plenary will explore the core conference theme, focusing on the strategic shift from reactive, traditional planning to data-driven, predictive execution in rigless campaigns.

Industry leaders will discuss how leveraging advanced well surveillance, real-time downhole telemetry, and cross-operator data sharing empowers the industry to make “Smarter Decisions.” This includes accurately identifying the right candidate wells, forecasting tool string performance before deployment, and eliminating the financial risk of “blind” interventions.

The panel will define how this data-first approach guarantees “Better Outcomes,” delivering first-time operational success, drastically reduced non-productive time (NPT), minimised carbon footprints, and maximised return on investment (ROI) for late-life regional assets.

As Asia Pacific assets mature, operators must seamlessly transition from production enhancement to safe decommissioning. Once assets enter this “new life” phase, precise downhole diagnostics will play a crucial role in allowing engineering teams confidently execute heavy, complex workovers—such as severe casing repair or completion replacement—to restore well integrity and maximise late-life ROI. High-fidelity surveillance and digital data serve as the strategic bridge across this entire late-life spectrum.

When wells reach their economic limit, the conversation shifts to the “end of life” phase. The panel will explore how the industry is reinventing abandonment by replacing conventional cement with next-generation, rigless alternative barriers.

The session will highlight the ultimate “Data” challenge: utilising advanced acoustic and thermal diagnostics to digitally verify both workover success and permanent barrier integrity. Join the discussion to discover how a unified, data-first approach is breaking down regulatory hurdles and setting a new, highly efficient standard for mature asset management.
