About

1874
WORKS

Established in late 2018, 1874 Works was founded by Susan and Ronald. The name 1874 Works comes from the age and history of the building where the aprons are made.

Susan is a seamstress with private clients from all over the world and established clients in Theatre and Dance Companies.

Ronald is a leather worker making creations for Theatre, Movies, Television Productions, cosplayers and a growing private clientele. We combined our skills to create a high quality, hard wearing, well designed apron.

Our Aprons are available in 3 variations and we are continuing to develop more products, our latest addition is a cross body bag using the same materials and stitch detail as our aprons.

We work and strive to give our customers not only the best shopping experience they can have but also an item that if looked after can last a lifetime.

1874 Works aprons are hand made with traditional tools and craftsmanship.

Made from high quality waxed cotton canvas with a treated cotton lining from fabric manufacturers Halley Stevensons Limited. Tough yet supple leather and solid brass buckles for the neck and waist bands.

These items are design to be used and become a part of your everyday life. Although traditionally made the aprons have modern design aspects we have developed ourselves such as a simple but necessary phone pocket on the inside of the apron at chest height for both convenience and the safety of your phone and a feedback loop on the waist buckle to avoid having any part of the leather waist belt get in your way while working.

Making these aprons we endeavour to provide the highest standards and create a garment that not only lasts but inspires.

Our saddlery roller buckle with welded joint is rated up to 200 kg.

The roller facilitates correct tightening and protects the material from wear when the buckle is fastened.

Excellent workmanship and strong prong ensure that the fastened material stays put.

TIP: Brass products can oxidize and darken as a result. This is not a defect, only a natural characteristic of brass.
