

The Lewis Chessmen

The Lewis chesspieces are among the best known objects in the National Museum of Scotland. Mostly carved from walrus ivory in the late 12th and early 13th century, they were found 700 years later in the vicinity of Uig on the Isle of Lewis. 3D laser scans were taken of some of the pieces in our collection to create these authentic poly-resin replicas. Made in the UK, exclusively for National Museums Scotland.

Galloway Hoard

The Galloway hoard contains the richest and most varied range of Viking-age objects ever discovered in Britain and Ireland – silver arm rings, ingots, gold, glass beads, jewels, two rare rock crystal objects and Scotland’s first discovery of Anglo-Saxon disc brooches. Many of these beautiful items are unique including a gold bird-pin, reminiscent of a phoenix and a quatrefoil brooch, comically depicting two of the senses – sight and sound!

Here Come the Picts!

The Picts were a tribal group of peoples who lived in what is today eastern and northern Scotland during the Late Iron Age and Early Medieval periods. Pictish art is one of their strongest legacies and their distinctive style of symbols and patterns appear on, amongst other items, stones and metalwork. Our popular ranges feature exclusive 'papercut' designs by artist Emily Hogarth, inspired by Pictish stones from our collection.

The Jacobites

The history of the exiled Stuart dynasty and their supporters, known as Jacobites, has held an enduring and romantic fascination for generations. Our glassware range draws on the secret symbols and emblems that were used to signify support for the cause. The Skye Boat Song, although written over 100 years after the Battle of Culloden, remains synonymous with the romance and legend of the Jacobites and is still popular today, having been adapted for the television series 'Outlander'.

Phoebe Anna Traquair

Phoebe Anna Traquair (1852–1936) was one of the foremost artists of her generation and a leading light of the Arts and Crafts movement. Multi-talented and prolific, her work encompassed embroidery, enamelwork, manuscript illumination and murals, amongst others. Our beautiful range is inspired by the magnificent 'Willowood Piano' painted by Traquair in 1909 and currently on display in the National Museum of Scotland.

Fair Isle

'Fair Isle' is a traditional knitting technique used to create patterns with multiple colours and named after the island of Fair Isle, situated off the north coast of Scotland, between Shetland and Orkney. Our range is inspired by various pieces of Fair Isle knitwear in our collection, including a jumper worn by the artist Stanley Curstiter that features in his painting 'The Fair Isle Jumper', 1923.

Terms & Conditions

Placing an order with National Museums Scotland Enterprises Ltd.

- Orders can be placed with us by completing the attached order form and emailing it to h.osmani@nms.ac.uk. If you would like to discuss the products further or would rather place an order over the phone, we would be more than happy to help and you can reach us on 0131 247 4236 between 9.00am and 4.00pm, Monday to Friday.
- If you have any suggestions or feedback on what we do, we would be delighted to hear from you: h.osmani@nms.ac.uk

Terms of Business

- All prices quoted are exclusive of VAT.
- Prices are correct at the time of going to press, though we reserve the right to alter them without notice. You will be informed at the time of placing your order if this has happened.
- All new accounts will operate on a pro-forma basis – a 30 day credit account may be possible after the first three orders but this is entirely at our discretion.
- Our minimum order value is £100 before VAT, and we will pay the carriage on all UK orders over £350, ex VAT. Carriage is charged at cost only. Postage for all overseas orders will be charged at cost.
- If you wish to purchase more than ten copies of any of the books available in this catalogue, please refer your enquiry to m.wilson@nms.ac.uk and it will be dealt with as a separate order. Orders for ten books or less of any title can be included in the trade order form.
- All applicable duties and taxes for overseas orders must be borne by the customer.
- We aim to deliver your order within 14 days. We will advise you in the case of any delays.
- We work hard to ensure the quality of our goods, however should there be a problem we must be informed of any shortages or damaged items by telephone within 3 days of receipt of delivery, and this must be confirmed in writing within 7 days of delivery.
- No goods should be returned to us without prior agreement. Returns which have not been agreed with us will not be accepted. If we agree for faulty goods to be returned to us, we will either arrange to have them collected or ask you to post them back to us. We will refund your postage costs, and issue relevant credit as long as we deem the goods to be faulty when we inspect them on receipt.
- All items remain the property of National Museums Scotland Enterprises Ltd (NMSE) until they have been paid for in full.
- All goods supplied are at the customers risk once delivered.
- If you wish to sell our products on a website other than that of your own registered company – e.g. Amazon, Ebay – you will need to apply for permission in advance from National Museums Scotland Enterprises Ltd. Please note that we reserve the right to refuse permission for some requests.
- The extent of NMSE's liability to the purchaser for any default or breach whatsoever arising shall in no case exceed the invoice value of the delivery in question and NMSE shall in no circumstances whatsoever be liable to the purchaser in respect of any loss or damage whether suffered by the purchaser or any third party and whether direct, indirect, consequential or however else arising. Nothing here is intended to exclude liability for death or personal injury caused by negligence or fraud.
- Infringement of our copyright or Intellectual Property rights will be pursued to the full extent of the law.
- Please make sure that you are happy with the order you have placed and that you have filled the order form out correctly. If you think a mistake has been made with your order at any stage please email us and we will look into it as quickly as possible.

By placing an order with us you are deemed to have accepted the above terms and conditions.
