Ecosse Pure Range

Crafted from 100% Natural, Organic, British Wool - no dyes, no chemicals and with a significantly lower carbon footprint than manmade fibres. Available only as nature intended, Ecosse Pure's shades and hues come entirely from the colour of the wool fleece on the sheep's back - there are a number of varieties of Welsh Mountain sheep, named for their locality of origin or their appearance.

The standard Welsh Mountain sheep is an 'oatmeal' type colour. We use this fleece to make our Light Grey Welsh sweaters. Black Welsh Mountain sheep (Defaid Mynydd Duon) are a much darker shade - dark brown, even. We use this fleece to make our Dark Grey Welsh sweaters.

Once an endangered breed, the Welsh Mountain sheep's future is now assured due to an increase in demand for the natural wool products that these beautiful animals provide. Well suited to the harsh environment of the Welsh Mountains, the sheep are kept on the hills and open mountainsides all year, being herded up using traditional shepherding methods a few times each year. Most flocks are descended from sheep that have grazed the same mountains for generations.

The Olympic Class - This sweater was developed using the images and archives from our sister company Miller - Rayner Est 1818 to reproduce a sweater reminiscent of what was worn by seamen from the White Star Line Olympic class of ocean liners, Olympic, Titanic and Britannic.

Miller - Rayner was the main supplier of uniforms to the White Star Line during this time and provided crew and officer uniforms for their ships including the ill- fated RMS Titanic.

We have chosen British long wool sheep predominately Blue Face Leicester for the yarn for this timeless crafted sweater.

This yarn is the closest British wool to merino and gives a luxurious soft hand feel. We also put a discreet Red ensign badge on the sleeve to distinguish this sweater as a salute to the proud traditions of the merchant navy which inspired its creation.
