Our wool starts its life upon the fells and downs of the British countryside.

The garments we produce use Worsted wool which is hand graded for the finest quality and fibre thickness. This results in a sustainable, completely natural garment.

Our traditional sweaters are knitted with close stitches from tightly twisted wool and this gives it its ability to withstand sea spray and rain. The result is a strong, long lasting garment that will hold its shape better in both wear and washing.

The Traditional Guernsey

The Traditional Guernsey Sweater has a story to tell.

The rib at the top of the sleeve is said to represent a sailing ship's rope ladder in the rigging, the raised seam across the shoulder a rope and the garter stitch panel, waves breaking upon the beach.

The traditional Guernsey sweater was originally a local fisherman's working garment, hence the diamond under the arm for ease of movement and extra strength. It is knitted with close stitches from tightly twisted wool and this gives it its ability to withstand sea spray and rain.

Traditional Guernsey sweaters were knitted by the womenfolk of the fishing and farming families of the islands, when many earned their living from the sea or the land. The distinctive pattern was handed down from generation to generation the knitting skills passed on from mother to daughter.

The Alderney

When Channel Jumper was established in 1976, the intention was to revive the Alderney sweater, a unique variation of the Guernsey with the Alderney Lion holding a sprig knitted into the front of the jumper. Our current design also incorporates knitting patterns that were in use at the time that the Alderney came into production.

The inspiration for our Alderney comes from the beautiful Island we live on and the strong desire to maintain as much tradition and 'Island' way of life as possible. Although Alderney has always been strongly reliant on its sister island Guernsey, it is fiercely independent and determined to keep its own identity.

We are currently the only manufacturer based in the Channel Islands to offer the Alderney.
